SUGGESTS PRESIDENT AS COMMITTEE HEAD

Lindbergh, Byrd, Wright to Assist in Welcome by Country.

CAPITAL ARRANGES TWO-DAY PROGRAM

Coste and Bellonte Expected to Be in Washington Sunday and Monday.

Mexico City, Sept 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Ambassador Morrow today agreed to serve on a committee to finance a round-the-United-States tour of Coste and Bellonte. He was asked to serve as chairman, but declined, owing to his plans to stay in Mexico until September 20. He told Richard Hoyt, of the firm of Hayden, Stone & Co., who is handling organization of the committee, that the chairman should be the President of the United States.

The ambassador explained that the committee planned to make Coste and Bellonte guests of the Nation, the cost of this homage to be borne by private subscription. The ambassador put his name down for a substantial amount.

Col. Charles Lindbergh and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will also serve on the committee, it was announced. Orville Wright will be asked to take a prominent part in the welcome of the Frenchmen.

Lindbergh Phones Morrow.

Lindbergh called the ambassador last night to tell him of the safe arrival of Coste and Bellonte and the ambassador immediately drove to the French Legation and felicitated Jean Perier, the French Minister.

(Copyright, 1930.)

The City of Washington will be host to France's aviation heroes, Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, for two days, it was learned last night, and it is expected that this period will be marked by the greatest outpouring of citizens the National Capital has seen since the return of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in 1927.

The high light of the Washington program will be a dinner to be given Monday evening in the Willard Hotel under the auspices of the Washington Board of Trade. Members of the French Embassy, high Government officials, representatives of all civic associations in the city and leaders in every walk of life will be invited to the affair, which is expected to be the most elaborate reception dinner given here in the last few years. Tentative plans for the banquet were made last night at a conference between George Plitt, president of the Board of Trade; L. E. Williams, chairman of the organization's aviation committee, and Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary, and Jules Henry, charge d'affaires of the French Embassy. Further details will be considered this morning.

Plans of Airmen Heroes.

The fliers, who, by their epic journey from Paris to New York, returned Lindbergh's call on Paris, are expected to arrive here next Sunday afternoon and to remain until Monday night and maybe longer.

They will spend Sunday afternoon and evening at the French Embassy resting, and will call upon President Hoover at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. After they have been presented by Mr. Henry they will be the President's guests at luncheon Monday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock.

To this luncheon will be invited officials of the French Embassy, officials of the American Government interested in aviation, Cabinet officers and others. The guest list is being compiled by George Akerson, secretary to the President.

Path to Prize Open.

It was Mr. Akerson who invited the French fliers to come here after they had completed their flight from Paris to New York. Mr. Akerson did this after a conference with President Hoover.

A question of diplomatic courtesy was involved. Had the President wanted to stand on ceremony, he might have insisted upon the fliers calling upon him immediately, just as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh called upon the French executive two years ago.

But when it was explained to the President that Coste and Bellonte were anxious to capture the $25,000 prize that had been offered by the chewing gum magnate, Col. William R. Easterwood, for a one-stop flight

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The airplane flight of Coste and Bellonte from Paris to New York is one of the most spectacular ever made. The danger of adverse winds and fogs had to be surmounted. Weather conditions had to be most favorable. Because of the great hazard involved, the judgment and skill required, these men properly rank as heroes of an epoch-making exploit. Where others had failed, they succeeded.

Undoubtedly this flight marks an advance in the art of aviation. It called for a plane of great power and perfect mechanical adjustment. But it raises no new question in military or commercial aviation. It demonstrates that the westward crossing is possible under some conditions, but that regular service is not yet practical. It stands as a great spectacle.

Such flights are of great value in their effect on international comity. When Lindbergh made his historic voyage to Paris, the French people felt almost as much pride in his accomplishment as his own countrymen. It aroused and cemented a most wholesome sentiment of friendship.

Such flights further demonstrate the peculiar international aspect of aviation. It reaches everywhere, breaks down domestic barriers and requires universal rules and regulations for its operation. It hastens the day of good will and cooperation.

ALL NEW YORK HAILS OCEAN CONQUERORS

MAKE LUNCHEON TALKS

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Two little men of modest manner were hailed by all New York today as the latest giants of aviation.

At a luncheon in their honor, on a ride around the harbor, in a parade through the streets, and at City Hall Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte were given tumultuous greeting that might have turned any head.

But it didn't turn theirs. They smiled. They waved. They said they were having a grand time. But quite evidently they remained from their own viewpoint just a couple of fellows who had tackled a tough job and had the good fortune to succeed.

Perhaps the most impressive of the day's ceremonies was the official welcome at City Hall, for there they were reminded that their flight, the first ever to be made nonstop from Paris to New York, compensated—in so far as was possible—for the loss of Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, the first to make the attempt.

"You may be especially proud," Mayor Walker told the fliers in the aldermanic chamber at City Hall, "that your great achievement is not only a wonderful accomplishment in itself but also is the final justification of the ill-fated attempt of your countrymen, Nungesser and Coli."

The luncheon was in the Advertising Club, but even before that the fliers had by no means had a quiet morning, for reporters and camera men were camped in their hotel, anxious for pictures and details of the nonstop flight to Dallas for a $25,000 prize tomorrow, and the aviators were almost continually under fire. They gave interviews, posed for pictures and made a little speech for the sound reels which reached its climax with the customary salutation, an exchange of hearty kisses on both cheeks.

Coste spoke briefly at the luncheon, expressing in French his appreciation of the welcome the city had extended to him and his companion, and he spoke again at City Hall. Bellonte begged off at the luncheon, but

$25,000 DALLAS HOP COSTE'S TASK TODAY

DONOR OF PRIZE ELATED

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte announced through their manager tonight that they will take off at 8 a. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow on their nonstop flight to Dallas, Tex., instead of at 8 a. m. (E. S. T.), as previously announced. They said the plane was in excellent condition.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Excitement was high in Dallas tonight as preparations were rushed for a real Texas welcome to Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, aerial conquerors of the Atlantic, who are expected to land tomorrow evening to collect a $25,000 prize.

The purse, offered by Col. William Easterwood, jr., Dallas aviation enthusiast and chewing gum manufacturer, will be theirs, if the French airmen are successful in making the non-stop flight from New York which they plan to start tomorrow morning.

Easterwood contracted to pay the money for the first successful Paris-New York-Dallas air voyage, conditioned upon a stop of not more than 72 hours in New York.

Dallas has set out to rival New York's reception to the fliers, and extraordinary arrangements were being made for policing the crowd that will gather at Love Field to greet the Frenchmen. The regular police force will be augmented by several troops of Texas National Guardsmen.

An escort of civilian and Army planes was detailed to fly northward to meet the scarlet sesquiplane marked with a white "2", which weathered the more than 4,000 miles of storms, fogs and doubtful weather separating Paris and New York.

Texas being the center of the Army's air training corps, aviation notables from the Government flying fields at San Antonio will lend a hand in making the visitors feel at home.

Col. Easterwood is in Europe but has appointed George Smith, newspaperman of Snyder, Tex., to be his personal representative at the reception accorded the airmen.

Smith arrived by plane today and Tromsoe, Norway, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Further interesting discoveries, one of which was most sensational in its nature, were made today by Swedish and Norwegian experts who were examining the relics of the Arctic expedition of Salomon August Andree brought to this port by Dr. Gunnar Horn and his exploration party.

This most important new find, overlooked until government scientists began their investigation of the remains of the famous polar aerial argosy of 1897, and one which may mean much not only to science, but to literature and drama as well, consisted of two notebooks. They were found wrapped in an undershirt at Andree's back. Evidently the explorer, near death, took one last precautionary measure that posterity might know the details of the first expedition ever to attempt to attain the North Pole by the aerial route.

Body Shielded Records.

One of these books contains only a few pages of writing. The other is full and quite legible. This latter, with other Andree records previously found, is expected to give to the world the whole story of the Swedish explorer's balloon expedition.

The examiners read, in their find, the evidence that the dying adventurer and scientist, apparently aware that his end was imminent, had wrapped his precious records in the shirt, placed them next to his skin on his back and then lay down upon them in the hope that his dead body would cover and shield them until some far North explorer could come upon the scene.

Bodies Definitely Identified.

It was a forlorn hope, but it worked. Among the other interesting discoveries were several Swedish flags

MOTHER, SON FACE CHARGES OF ARSON

BLAZE COVERS 300 ACRES

Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen yesterday battled two large forest fires, which caused damage of approximately $18,000 and captured two alleged robbers during the fire-fighting.

Shortly after noon yesterday Mrs. Clara O. Tucker, of near Landover, returned home from the store to find her home ransacked and the field near her home ablaze. She called volunteer firement from Bladensburg, among them being Constable George Wiseman, who is vice president of the fire department.

When the firemen arrived, a stiff breeze had spread the flames to the adjoining field of Mrs. George D. Hamlet, widow of Maj. Hamlet, setting fire to a modern chicken shed valued at $3,000 and a barn valued at $2,000. Both structures were completely destroyed and flames crept within a few yards of the residence when firemen succeeded in putting this sector under control.

Volunteer fire companies from Riverdale, Mount Rainier, Capitol Heights, Greater Capitol Heights, Boulevard Heights, Brentwood and Hyattsville responded to the call for more help, the Hyattsville apparatus breaking down en route.

Flames spread and jumped the road

Two North Carolinians Die as Auto Hits Train

Greenville, N. C., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Two persons were killed today as an automobile crashed into a Norfolk & Southern freight train at a crossing near her.

The dead are W. J. Smith, lumber manufacturer, of Bethel, and W. J. Gardner, Pitt County farmer. W. D. Gardner, the driver, was seriously hurt. The automobile struck the train five cars back of the locomotive. Gardner said his vision was obscured by fog.

PRESIDENT TO MAKE OCTOBER SPEECHES

TWO LISTED FOR BOSTON

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Acceptance by the President yesterday of two more invitations for speeches in October was politically interpreted as revealing his decision to plunge into the forthcoming campaign.

He is to address the American Federation of Labor in Boston, October 6, the same day he had already agreed to address the American Legion convention. On October 2 he is to address the convention of the American Bankers Association in Cleveland and the day following his Boston trip he is to speak at the sesqui-centennial celebration of the Battle of Kings Mountain in North Carolina.

There are, therefore, to be four speeches in one week, almost as many as he has made since he has been in office. It is believed, too, that this presages further speaking activity. Even his public appearances outside of Washington have heretofore been few and far between.

It may or may not be significant that decisions to broaden his speaking activity came shortly after Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced that the President would be the issue in the forthcoming congressional campaign.

Now it is not unusual for the President to be the issue in congressional

ALEXANDRIA CAMP DESTROYED BY FIRE

BLAZE DRAWS CROWD

A spectacular general alarm fire sweeping through frame cottages in the King West Camp at Alexandria early last night damaged property to the extent of $8,000, brought minor injuries to a half dozen firemen and caused traffic snarls on the Highway Bridge that required the efforts of a special motorcycle detachment from the Traffic Bureau to untangle.

Six two room cottages and as many garages were destroyed before four engine companies succeeded in getting water to the blaze, which originated behind 8 Washington street extended. None of the cottages was occupied.

After hose had been laid for more than $1,000 feet, it was found that the line was connected with a dead main and firemen were forced to string another line 1,250 feet to the north. While waiting for the water to beturned on, Fireman Wallace Harrington, of No. 5 Engine Co., was overcome by heat. He was removed to the Alexandria Hospital. Other firemen slightly cut or burned were Frank Fields, A. Heflin, George Poole, H. B. Struder, Harold Butler and A. F. Skilman. Most of the injuries were cuts received from the barbed wire fence surrounding the tourist camp. The injured were treated by the Alexandria fire rescue squad.

The camp was owned by Joseph Varin. The fire was discovered by 13-year-old Walter Johnson, who saw flames rising from the center of the twelve-bungalow colony. The first alarm was sounded at 9:45, and when Fire Chief J. M. Duncan arrived on the scene shortly afterward, a general alarm was turned in.

Chief Duncan expressed the belief that the fire had started in an automobile owned by Eugene Cannon, of South Carolina, and had spread from the car to a nearby cottage. The car was badly damaged.

Flames from the pine houses were clearly visible in Washington, and thousands of motorists jammed the Key and Highway bridges following the rumor that "Alexandria was burning up."

The blaze was well in hand about 35 minutes after the general alarm had been turned in.

160-MILE GALE SWEEPS OVER TROPICAL ISLE

COMMUNICATION CUT IN LATE AFTERNOON

THREE PORTO RICO LINE SHIPS NEARBY

News of Heavy Damage in the Island Republic Is Received.

(Associated Press.)

Cuba, Florida and the Gulf coast looked with uneasiness toward the southeast last night as an ominous solence followed unconfirmed reports of devastation in Santo Domingo by a tropical hurricane.

Communication with the city ceased shortly after 3:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, when a report was received in Porto Rico that a wind of 150 miles or more was lifting the roofs from houses and that all communications and power lines were rapidly going down. About this time communication by way of All America Cables ceased, lending color to the report.

Uneasiness increased as reports through the day indicated a wind of tremendous velocity. The last radio message received by Pan-American airways in Miami from its station in Santo Domingo said the wind was blowing 136 miles an hour and that the barometer had dropped .33 in 42 minutes.

Appears Highest Gale.

Richard W. Gray, Government meteorologist in Miami, said he recalled but two automatically recorded wind velocities in excess of 136 miles per hour. One was in the Miami hurricane of 1926 when the wind blew 138 miles an hour and another of 150 miles an hour in Porto Rico in 1928.

Observers in the Weather Bureau in Washington and its stations toward the hurricane area were intense in their study of storm reports and to charts of its vicinity. They were inclined to believe that it had shifted its direction during the day from west-northwestward to northwestward.

The first advisory bulletin from Washington said the storm was 100 miles south or southeast of Santo Domingo and was making about 12 miles an hour. Later, however, another bulletin said its center apparently was approaching Santo Domingo. The reports of damage in Santo Domingo were received both in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Damage Is Reported.

Havana, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—El Pais, a Spanish language newspaper, at 5 p. m. today reported receiving authentic information that Santo Domingo City was devastated by a hurricane which struck there late today.

Cuba became deeply concerned tonight with the possibility that the westward course of the disturbance might change to a more northerly direction and cut a swath of destruction across the island.

Santiago, lying on a line almost directly between Santo Domingo and Fisherman's Point, was reported preparing for the blow in the belief that the storm might reach that point tomorrow morning.

The National Observatory at 9:42 p. m. (E. S. T.) reported that it had received definite information that the

Sun Heat May Reveal Weather Week Ahead

Dr. Abbot, Smithsonian Savant, Sees Vast Advance Near.

Chicago, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Weather forecasting a week in advance through measurement of the heat given off by the sun is believed by Smithsonian Institution officials to be a probable scientific adventure of the future.

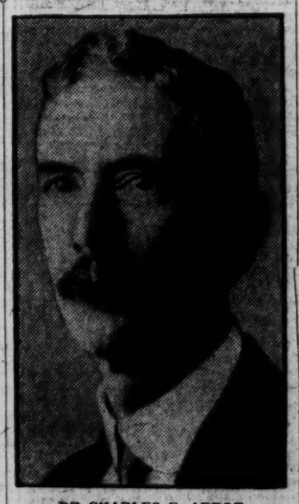
Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the institution, today told the American Astronomical Society that years of observation had shown that the sun's warmth, as radiated, varies from day to day and the earth's temperature varies in response to these short period changes.

Should the prospect of weather forecasting on the basis of solar radiation be realized, Dr. Abbot held that the Smithsonian's announcement would stand as marking one of the epochs in the history of meteorology. It represented more than 30 years of continuous investigation of the sun, he said. Although he and his associates had long known definitely that the amount of solar radiation varied and had foreseen a resultant influence on the earth's temperature, he added, this is the first time that unmistakable proof of large influence had been obtained by them.

The proof lies, Dr. Abbot said, in the fact that since January 1, 1924, whenever solar radiation increased or decreased continuously for a period of four or five days to a maximum or minimum, the temperature at Washington and other stations showed a definite deflection up or down, beginning four days before and continuing till at least four days after.

The scientist said the influence operates through some atmospheric mechanism as yet not understood and was not a direct result of the solar change. In some months a rise in solar radiation was held to cause a rising temperature, while in other months a similar rise caused a falling temperature.

Until the reasons for this difference in effect at different seasons is found, he said, it would be risky to undertake weather forecasting upon results thus far.



DR. CHARLES G. ABBOT.

Nye Charges Effort to End Or Influence Illinois Quiz

Will Not Be Moved, Says Senator, "By Will to Intimidate;" Hearings Off to September 15, After Rival Detectives Are Accused.

Chicago, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Bitterly assailing methods he said were employed by agents engaged by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick to investigate activities of the Senate campaign funds committee, Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the committee, in a formal statement issued tonight, said the body would not be diverted from its course by "any smoke screen laid down through a will to threaten, intimidate and influence."

In the statement, issued after formal adjournment of the committee's hearing, Senator Nye expressed amazement over Mrs. McCormick's admission that she had employed detectives to investigate activities of the committee. He continued:

"'What is Nye going to do about it?' is a question contained in the confession by this candidate.

"In the face of vast possibilities in such a program as had apparently been planned by these detectives, and in fear of the great and lasting injury which might be the reward for doing anything other, I presume it was expected that the committee would be prevailed upon by its chairman to retreat from its work in Illinois.

"But, while admitting that there might be truth in one individual's alleged prophecy that when this private investigation of myself was finished and its results were made known, 'Nye would be selling papers on the depot platform at Fargo, N.

Boy Admits Killing Chemist And Hiding Body, Police Say

Baltimore 16-Year-Old, in Alleged Confession, Asserts He Secreted Corpse in Barrel, Then Began Wave of Spending on Victim's Funds.

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—A 16-year-old boy confessed today to police, they announced, that he killed his employer with a monkey wrench, hid his body in a barrel and then started a month's career of luxury with money he obtained by forging the other's name. The boy, Kennard Thompson, was arrested yesterday in an automobile he had bought with money obtained by forgery, and last night the body of the employer, Herbert G. Wetters, a chemist, was found in a barrel in the rear of his small establishment in the West End.

Until the reasons for this difference in effect at different seasons is found, he said, it would be risky to undertake weather forecasting upon results thus far.

Wetters lived alone in an apartment over his shop and the shop, where Wetters made soap and perfume, had been closed for several weeks, but his sister and brother said they thought he had gone to Ocean City, Md., for a vacation at the beach. Kennard had been in the employ of Wetters, who was middle-aged, about a year, and lived with him.

Kennard, police said, confessed that he went to the shop about midnight August 1 under the influence of liquor. His entry, he said, aroused Wetters and the employer came down stairs. Then, the boy told officers, he struck the man on the head with a wrench.

The rest of the night, he said, he slept on the floor by the body and the next day took $20 from the safe and went to New York. Returning three days later he put the body in hurricane which is now raging in the Caribbean Sea had turned in its track and was heading toward Haiti after having traversed and devastated large sections of Santo Domingo.

The observatory said the hurricane had done terrific damage, but it had not reports of loss of life. The director, Dr. Carlos Millas, said that there was little likelihood of its striking Cuba.

Last Message at 3:30.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept 3 (A. P.).—With a tropical hurricane centering near Santo Domingo City and reported moving northward into the Atlantic Ocean, the last communication received from Santo Domingo at 3:30 p. m. today stated that a wind of 150 or more miles an hour was lifting the roofs off houses, with all communication and power lines rapidly going down.

The Radio Corporation of America announced this evening that advices to them, the last received from Santo Domingo, said the wind there had reached a velocity of 160 miles per hour.

Air mail and passenger service in the West Indies was at a standstill today because of weather disturbances reported this morning as continuing south of Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

A Pan-American Airways plane due here today put back to Santo Domingo city after starting out. It later returned to Port au Prince, Haiti.

Dominica Badly Hurt.

Montreal, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—The Canadian National Steamships offices today received advices from their steamer Lady Hawkins off Dominica that a bad storm struck that island Monday and did much damage to fruit plantations. Dominica is one of the Leeward islands and is southeast of Santo Domingo.

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Three passenger steamships of the Porto Rico Line—the Coamo, the Huron and the Porto Rico—are now in West Indian waters, butu so far as could be learned tonight officials of the line had received no messages from them about the hurricane.

The superintendent in charge of the line's pierf said the Huron, which left New York Saturday for Santa Domingo with about a dozen passengers, was probably about 500 miles north of Santa Domingo tonight and away from the storm area.

Summons Cites Bishop, Injured in Auto Crash

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Bishop Thomas J. Toolan, of Mobile, Ala., was severely cut about the head and face today when his automobile was struck by another and turned over twice. A summons was issued for the bishop on a charge of reckless driving and on Erchar Schmall, driver of the other machine, for failure to give right of way.

to the Beaver Dam Country Club grounds, burning through woods in East Columbia Park and Dodge Park, over an area of approximately 300 acres.

Following the flames across the road, firemen discovered a burlap sack with six chickens and a 5-gallon jug of vinegar.

Constable Wiseman arrested Alice Chase, colored, 40 years old, and her son, Lawrence Chase, 13 years old, both of Glen Arden, and lodged them in the Bladensburg Jail. The boy is alleged to have admitted that he and his mother robbed the Tucker and Hamlet houses and started the fire.

The boy also admitted several other minor robberies in the neighborhood, police say. The mother and son will be charged with housebreaking, larceny and arson today, police said. They steadfastly denied that they had taken a gold watch valued at $50 from the Tucker home, however.

The volunteer firemen also battled flames on the Lord & Lord property at Lanham, covering about 80 acres, yesterday. This fire had broken out anew last night and was threatening the adjoining property of Edward Mahoney.

a barrel, covered it with paper, poured twenty gallons of alcohol over it to preserve it and rolled the barrel into a closet.

Four other youths, arrested in Kennard's new automobile yesterday, were held without charge for questioning and Oliver Beefelt, a junk dealer, was charged with receiving stolen goods after buying the strong box from the safe from Kennard.

The sale of the strong box was the start of a train of events that led to discovery of the crime. Eight bank books were found in the shop, indicating that Wetters had a balance of several thousand dollars.

"I don't know why I did it," the boy was quoted by the police. "I had nothing against him. He sometimes had $7,000 or $8,000 in the safe, but not when I opened it that night."

Police found notes from Wetters' brother, John K. Wetters, of Washington, stating he had been to the shop several times. His sister is Mrs. Anna M. Finch, of Baltimore.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

FAIRFAX OFFICIALS HEAR BRIDGE PLANS

REPORTS ARE RECEIVED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Col. Fred B. Bryan, of the Occoquan Hydroelectric Power Co., which is building a large dam on Bull Run, appeared before the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday in regard to the crossing at Woodyard's Ford. He stated that his company is willing to build a dry ford at its own expense, or to pay one-third of the cost of erecting a bridge somewhere in the vicinity, and until some agreement is reached with the boards of supervisors of Fairfax and Prince William Counties, the work on the dam will be held up. Both boards have informed the company that no money is available for work there this year, but they are undecided whether to allow him to go ahead with the ford or to build the new bridge next year. Chairman W. F. P. Reid decided to call a special meeting of the board for next Tuesday morning, and he requested the county clerk to notify the Prince William board of this meeting and ask them to meet the Fairfax County board at the ford to determine the future course of the counties.

Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, who has been recommended as Fairfax County Drought Relief chairman, asked the supervisors' cooperation in the work of his committee. He asked that three members of the board be appointed to act as county representatives on the drought relief committee. He outlined the work of the committee and pleaded for unity of all county organizations.

The supervisors passed a resoluution indorsing the work of the drought committee and requested all county agencies under their supervision to render any assistance that might be asked of them. The members of the supervisors' committee appointed at Mr. Allen's request were: W. F. P. Reid, chairman, of Mount Vernon district; Mark Turner, of Dranesville district, and D. W. Buckley, of Centreville district. The board also appropriated $15 for stationary for the committee.

A report of the county health unit shows that there were seven cases of typhoid fever in the county and most of the unit's time had been spent in fighting the spread of this disease. The supervisors requested that the unit make a test of all wells located at the county schools.

Chairman Reid and County Engineer F. N. Larkin were instructed to appear before the State highway commissioner if necessary in regard to the road construction work on the Washington-Richmond highway at the junction of the Mount Vernon road. Several of the supervisors stated instead of improving the road at this point, was making it more dangerous. The bridge recently built there, is several feet narrower than the old structure.

In reply to the supervisors' request to the United States Department of Agriculture, concerning ridding the county jail of bed bugs, the department stated that this was against their policy, but if the county would furnish the material they would consider assisting them, but would not guarantee the results.

Mrs. Louise S. Manghum, Fairfax County welfare worker, was authorized by the board to investigate all cases of persons applying for county poor relief before any bills would be contracted. This practically takes the distribution of the county's poor relief fund out of the hands of the overseers of the poor.

The county engineer recommended that a road from Hunters road, at Enola Station, along the Arlington-Fairfax Railway to Woodford, then to the old Courthouse road, be established as soon as the 30-foot right of way was deeded to the county. The maintenance of such road would cease if the right of way was not secured before the end of this year. The cost of establishing this road would be approximately $300. The supervisors also voted to take over Colvin street, Sweely street and Roth street, in Camron Park as a county road, to be maintained by the county, this would give an outlet to a large number of persons living there to the Fruit Growers' Express Co. plant. The county engineer reported that during the past month $2,240.83 was expended in improving roads in Centerville District, $1,492.44 was expended in Danesville District, $2,021.84 was expended in Falls Church District, $949.57 was spent in Lee District, $2,698.51 was spent in Mount Vernon District and $852.55 was spent on Providence District roads. He also reported that because of lack of funds he was compelled to lay off most of the employes in the county highway department.

With simple ceremony, a large American flag was unfurled over the Fairfax County Courthouse yesterday. This is the first time in approximately 40 years a flag has been flown over the historic structure, according to several of the older residents. A large metal flag pole has been erected on the lawn in front of the courthouse and from this the flag will be flown daily. The national emblem was presented to the county by Mrs. Mary M. North, of Washington and Herndon. She was not able to be present yesterday and the official presentation was made by Deputy County Clerk Elton R. Holbrook in her behalf. The flag was accepted for the county by W. F. P. Reid, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, which was in session yesterday.

The annual report of the Fairfax County Schools was completed yesterday by Divisional Superintendent Wilbert T. Woodson. This report shows the exact receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 30, 1930.

The receipts for the year were as follows: Received from the State, $70,327.11; received from county, $149,636.37, and from the district funds, $53,599.41. The receipts from other sources were appropriations from supervisors, $1,035; tuition from private persons, $67.50; tuition from public sources, $2,520; tuition from other counties, $3,727.51; money received from trust funds, $187.50; sale of supplies, $37.50; rents and rebates, $557.69; sale of real estate, $75; donations for school libraries, $272.54; other donations $246.05; other special funds, $1,999.51. Balance left over from last year, $342.51. The total receipts from other sources amounted to $11,066.95, from the sinking fund and interest $4,294.95 was received. The above items make a total of $287,925.79, which was all the money received by the school board that year.

Disbursements made by the school board are as follows: Administrative officers, salary of school officials, and their expenses were $6,187.16; for instruction in regular day school or teachers salaries, $130,512.28; special instruction and part time instruction, $1,921.40; other instruction costs such as textbooks, maps and laboratory supplies amounted to $566.84. For coordinate activities, which include dental inspection, $746.86 was spent. Transportation of pupils in private and county owned buses and their upkeep amounted to $19,318.12; for janitor supplies, fuel and water, light, $16,235.08. The board also paid $4,172.79 for insurance and $5,445.47 for commissions to the county treasurer. Repairs to buildings, upkeep to grounds and other miscellaneous expenses amounted to $10,440.30. The capital outlay, which includes purchase of land, equipment of buildings and improvements to sites, amounted to $3,024.11. The repayment of bonds, loans, sinking fund interest and other debt service amounted to $29,434.91.

The balance which was left on hand on June 30, 1930, was $59,810.47, which included all county, district, trust and other funds and the debts at the close of the year were $154,737.

One of the most complete stills ever found in Fairfax County was seized and two men arrested in a raid made early yesterday morning by Sheriff E. P. Kirby and Deputies Henry Magarity and Paul Herrman. The still was found on a small island near Riverside, about five miles south of Alexandria. Almond Dodson, 25, and William Burgess, 21, of Riverside, were surprised at the still, which was in operation at the time of the raid, according to the officers. The large copper still of about 100-gallon capacity, a 50-gallon copper doubler, a large copper coil and about 40 gallons of alleged liquor were seized. The men were lodged in the county jail pending a hearing before a justice of the peace.

The organization of the new town council at Fairfax held its meeting in the office of Mayor Thomas P. Chapman, who was reelected this spring. The members of the town's two committees—finance and streets—were appointed by Mayor Chapman. The finance committee is composed of Edgar Littleton, Lewis Coyner and H. W. Clarke; members of the streets and sidewalks committee, A. R. Sherwood, James E. Nickell and O. B. Campbell. Dr. Frank W. Huddleson was reelected by the council as treasurer, and Mrs. James U. Kincheloe as school trustee for the town school board. Thomas P. Chapman was elected school trustee to succeed James E. Nickell, who resigned to serve on the town council.

This being the first meeting of the council which took office on September 1, this year, very little was accomplished except the organization. The current bills of the town were ordered certified and paid.

Mrs. J. T. Unverzagt, of Falls Church, is visiting her son, Henry J. Unverzagt, who is in the consulate at Nogales. Mrs. Unverzagt made the trip by the northern route, visiting Chicago, Kansas City and Tucson, according to word received by her friends in Falls Church. She plans to make the return trip by water by way of the Panama Canal.

CULPEPER FAIR ENDS WITH BABY CONTEST

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 3.—The baby contest was the leader on the program of the closing day of the Culpeper County Fair. Charles Worthington Goldsborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Goldsborough, won in the class for babies 1 year old and over, and Evelyn Elizabeth Utz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Utz, won in the class for those under 1 year.

The parade of prize winners in the live stock events was held, and Preston M. Browning was awarded the grand championship prize on his 2-year-old colt. There was a marked falling off in attendance, and the crowd showed the effects of the long drought by the small amount of money spent.

Only three races were scheduled today, the steeplechase being omitted. The first was the best on the card, with Bowman's Show Boat going to the front on the first turn and leading all the way with George Jessie in the saddle.

First race—First, Show Boat, A. S. Bowman; second, George Jessie, Frank Bennett; third, Maryland Boy, H. M. Simpson.

Second race—First, Run Chief, Chamberlain; second, Gemme, W. P. Ralston; third, Frenzy, Woodside Stock Farm.

Two Killings Laid To Hobo by Police

Virginia Authorities State Man Admits Slaying Detectives.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Police said late this afternoon that William Foy, Negro, of Greensboro, N. C., held here on a charge of slaying Railroad Detective L. B. Clements, of Richmond, had confessed to the slaying of another railroad detective, W. A. Smith, at Fayetteville, N. C., last week.

Earlier in the day, police stated, he confessed to shooting Detective Clements, of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, last night, afterward throwing the body from a freight train near Dunlop Yards, Va. Foy was the first to call officers' attention to Clements' death. He reported to the station agent at Dunlop that Clements had been shot by "another hobo" and thrown from the train.

He was arrested immediately and police said that today he broke down and confessed to the Clements slaying. Three more hoboes, two of them white, also riding on the train from which Clements' body was thrown, were being held by Chesterfield County police on charges of trespassing.

RAILWAY PROPERTY IN VIRGINIA LARGE

$3,723,652 TAXES PAID

Richmond, Va., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Steam railroads, Virginia's largest public utility taxpayer, had in the State this year tangible property whose actual value was $371,380,200, which does not include rolling stock, it is shown by the tax rolls completed by R. E. Steele, chief assistant assessor of the State Corporation Commission.

The 45 railroads operating in Virginia had property assessed at $148,552,108, which under the law is reported at 40 per cent of its actual value. The Norfolk & Western was the largest property owner, with tangible holdings assessed at $48,626,681, which regarded at 40 per cent of actual value, would show its true worth to be $121,566,700.

Tax on Receipts.

These railroads had 4,516 miles of roadway and track or canal bed, not including sidetracking, of which there were 2,459 miles.

The assessment rolls revealed that last year Virginia's gross transportation receipts reached the large figure of $161,716,536.70, which is subject to a State tax of one and one-half per cent, producing revenue of $2,423,990.71.

As listed on the assessment rolls, the steam railroads showed roadway and track or canal bed assessments of $97,033,020; terminals, yard lands and buildings assessed at $28,734,066; depot, shop grounds and other lands assessed at $8,596,942; other real estate assessed at $3,293,364; telegraph, telephone and power lines, $1,596,837; boats and floating property other than canal boats, $1,105,130; machinery, equipment and apparatus, $4,070,000; stores, fuel, material and supplies, $3,832,749.

Since tangible property is taxed for local purposes only, taxation for the State is based on rolling stock, intangible personal property, money and the State franchise tax of 1½ per cent of gross transportation receipts. On these intangibles the 45 railroads are paying this year $3,723,652.46.

Taxes Paid State.

Rolling stock, assessed at $46,065,362, tax of $2.50 on ach $100, $1,151,634.11; intangible personal property, valued at $26,528,489, tax of 50 cents on each $100, $132,642.76; money on deposit or under control of the owner, $7,692,442.65, taxed at 20 cents on each $100, $15,384.88; Virginia gross transportation receipts for last year, $161,716,536.70, taxed at 1½ per cent, $2,423,990.71; total State taxes, $3,723,652.46.

BANDS, DRUM CORPS VIE AT CONVENTION

GROUP SEES ANNAPOLIS

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—More than a score of bands and drum corps of the Veterans of Foreign Wars holding their twenty-ninth annual encampment here shattered the atmosphere at the Fifth Regiment Armory tonight in competition for $3,000 in cash awards and other prizes. The drum corps sought the crown won at the St. Paul convention last year by the Freemond Madison Post, of Albert Lea, Minn.

Meanwhile, members of the Military Order of the Cootie, the V. F. W. fun-making organization, engaged in a torchlight parade preparatory to staging the "supreme scratch," an initiation ceremony held only at national conventions.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held an exemplification meeting, ritualistic in nature, at a hotel. Veterans and members of the auxiliary went to Annapolis today in three steamers, where they inspected the Naval Academy after being greeted by the superintendent, Rear Admiral S. S. Robison, and then visited the statehouse and other points of interest.

A number of veterans of the Army and National Guard outfits which took part in the parade yesterday left the city today.

Prizes of $250, $200 and $150 were offered by the national organization for the best bands and the best drum corps. For the women's and men's drill teams the prizes were silver cups. The defending women's drill champions was the Ladies Auxiliary from Des Moines, Iowa.

Winners in the competition will be announced at a military ball Thursday night.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 3.—More than 4,000 delegates and members of Ladies' Auxiliaries of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, now holding their annual convention in Baltimore, visited the Naval Academy and Annapolis today. Three steamers, crowded to capacity, landed at the Naval Academy dock during the forenoon, and another large contingent came in a caravan of motor buses. Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the academy, delivered an address of welcome to the veterans, who afterward enjoyed an old-time crab feast on the naval reservation as guests of officials. Later the veterans were received by Gov. Ritchie at the statehouse.

PROGRESSIVES FLAY MONTGOMERY RULE

Administration Attacked in Speeches at Clarksburg and Chevy Chase.

The record of the present administration in Montgomery County was attacked at two meetings held by the Progressive Democratic faction of Montgomery County last night. One meeting was held at Clarksburg and the other at Columbia Country Club, Chevy Chase, Md.

Speakers at the meeting attacked the plan of financing county improvements by bond issues, which is in use by the present administration, which is seeking reelection and is known as the organization faction.

Speakers at the Clarksburg meeting were E. Barrett Prettyman, candidate for election to the Maryland House of Delegates; Senator Eugene Jones, who seeks reelection to the State Senate; John Oxley, candidate for State's attorney, and Albert M. Boulc, Rockville lawyer.

The country club meeting was presided over by Ray Schreiner, president of the Bank of Brightwood, and was addressed by Mr. Prettyman, Jean McLaghlen, candidate for county commissioner, and Carey Quinn, secretary of the Progressive party. Dr. Jones arrived too late to speak.

Nine Charges Faced By Motor Salesman

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Arraigned on five charges of larceny and four of forgery, William D. Patterson, 32, of Smithfield, N. C., was held to the grand jury today under $10,000 bond.

A detective told the magistrate Patterson had stolen several demonstration automobiles from firms that employed him as a salesman.

SUPERVISOR'S TRIAL TO CONTINUE TODAY

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

After consuming more than 6 hours, the second day of the impeachment proceedings against Supervisor B. M. Hedrick from Arlington District brought against him by the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County in a petition filed with the court last June adjourned yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock to resume again today at 10 o'clock before Circuit Judge Alexander T. Browning, of Orange, with the prosecution still carrying on its case.

Resuming the stand, Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth testified that he met with the board of directors of the Arlington Investment Corporation the afternoon of January 7, 1930, at Clarendon, and at that time he stated that the books of the company showed that neither the execution of the note in payment for the installation of water and sewer nor a contract with K. Messick to do the work had been authorized by any resolution.

Continuing he stated that the work was not authorized by the investment corporation, according to its records, until a later meeting which was held January 13, 1930.

Mr. Gloth stated that the only time that he ever discussed the matter with Hedrick was at the open meeting of the board of supervisors, but that he had talked separately with Supervisors Edward Duncan and E. C. Turnburke. He also stated that at many meetings of the board he was asked by it how he was getting along with making a collection for the work, Hedrick never entering into the discussion, he stated. An attempt on the part of Attorney Miller to draw from Mr. Gloth what he had been told by the other two supervisors outside of the board meeting was strongly objected to by the defense and was sustained by the court.

Farr Questions Gloth.

Conducting the examination for the defense, Wilson Farr asked Mr. Gloth why did he not object to the payment of the vouchers to K. Messick by the board of supervisors. His reply was, "I did not know anything about them. There are hundreds of vouchers paid out by the board and I do not follow all of them. The bills of each district, as far as district expenditures are concerned, are left to the member from that district for his approval and if not objected to by him is stamped approved by the chairman of the board." He said that he knew of no other corporation who has received water and sewer improvements as has the Waycroft subdivision owned by the Arlington Investment Corporation.

"I am in no way a party to this affair directly or indirectly," said Mr. Gloth.

"As Commonwealth attorney of this county, had you found anything irregular in conduct on the part of Supervisor Hedrick, was it not your duty to present it to the grand jury?" Mr. Farr asked. Mr. Gloth replied that after writing a letter to Hedrick in December, 1929, that he did report it to Circuit Court Judge Howard W. Smith and, if not mistaken, gave him a copy of the letter. "I considered that as far as I should go and felt that I had done my duty," Mr. Gloth said, adding that the judge was about to convene the December term of court and was busy. His reference to Judge Smith being in the midst of a campaign for Congress brought forth strong objection on the part of Mr. Farr. Mr. Gloth stated he did not in any way mean that Judge Smith was not taking care of his duties as judge and "I do not want any one within the hearing of my voice to think otherwise," he said.

Continuing, he said he had nothing to do with the preparation of the original petition and knew nothing about it until it was shown him after being presented to the court in June. "As for the amended petition, that was prepared by Attorney Miller and at his request I met him at the Warrenton Club and brought it back to Arlington County that it might be filed in proper time," the witness said.

"Do you mean to tell the citizens of this county that as Commonwealth's attorney of this county that you attend the meetings of the board of supervisors and are not able to tell whether bills are illegal?" Mr. Farr asked.

"I mean to tell the citizens," said Mr. Gloth, "that I take the word of County Engineer C. L. Kinnier and do not go over every bill."

"When I became Commonwealth's attorney in 1924 vouchers were being made out payable to the engineer to pay the employes. That method I changed and now and since that time separate vouchers are made out for each bill. I also know that many things have been done and no record made, but that is not the case now."

"Mr. Gloth, were you not allowed $125 for your secretary during the annexation proceedings due to the large amount of work in your office?" Mr. Farr asked. "Yes, that is true," said Mr. Gloth. "Did not Supervisor Hedrick make the motion to take that amount away from you?" Mr. Gloth said he could not recall. "I want to say," said Mr. Gloth, "that I have no unfriendly feelings against Hedrick or any official because the money was taken from me."

Mrs. Bertha S. Kelley, member of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, next witness called, admitted having signed the petition which resulted in the present proceedings. She stated that "it seems strange when persons were trying to get water and sewer improvements this work was completed. I was willing for an investigation.

"I supported Hedrick at the polls and if it is shown that he has done nothing wrong I shall be one of the first to congratulate him," Mrs. Kelley said.

When asked by Mr. Farr who prepared the petition, Mrs. Kelley said Mrs. Simpson, president of the organization, as far as she knew, took part in its preparation, and that she brought the completed draft to her to sign.

"Did you make an investigation as to whether the charges in the petition as alleged might be true?"

"Mrs. Kelley replied, "No, my only interest being to see that justice be done.

Mrs. Simpson Questioned.

Mrs. Ruby Simpson, president of Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, was the next witness called and she stated that she with a delegation of women from the organization appeared before the board of supervisors when two of the members asked for water improvements. This was in March of this year. She stated that they were informed that the county Engineer would take care of the matter as soon as possible. No funds were available for the work at that time, the board said, according to Mrs. Simpson.

On cross examination, conducted by Capt. Mackey, Mrs. Simpson said that no member of the committee who signed the petition asked Mr. Gloth to obtain a ruling against Hedrick.

"Why did you employ private counsel to prosecute a public official?" she was asked.

She replied "it was done at the suggestion of Judge McCarthy at the time the petition was presented to him." We made no effort to obtain counsel from the county and would not have had a county attorney," Mrs. Simpson said.

When asked who prepared the petition, Mrs. Simpson stated that Attorney Hugh Reid, of Arlington County, gave most of the legal information necessary for the petition and that the rough draft was copied by Mrs. Cannon, a member of the organized women voters.

"Did you not know that a note had been given in April for full settlement by the Investment Corporation and that the money was in the hands of the supervisors and yet you sign a petition sworn to that no effort had been made to collect the money?" Mrs. Simpson replied, "I did not consider a note as cash. I knew the exact date the note was paid by the investment corporation."

Following recess for lunch the defense sprung a surprise when it called Judge Smith to the stand following an agreement with counsel for prosecution.

Being questioned by Mr. Farr, Judge Smith stated that he resigned from the bench April 20, 1930.

"It has been testified by Gloth that this matter was referred to you."

Judge Smith replied, "All I remember was that last December Gloth came to my office saying he had a matter that he thought should go to the grand jury. He was only in my office two or three minutes. I suggested that he get all the data together.

"It has also been said," Mr. Farr said, "that a letter was left with you."

"I don't remember it. Had it been, it would have been returned. No further reference to the matter was made to me by Gloth," Judge Smith stated.

On cross-examination by Mr. Miller, Judge Smith was asked: "Don't you remember Gloth coming to your office and you were in conference with Sheriff Howard B. Fields and Gloth left some papers with you and you replied that you would take them under advisement?"

"I do not think that is correct," Judge Smith replied.

After the surprise by the defense the prosecution, with but a few minutes before adjournment, recalled County Engineer Kinnier, who produced a map claiming to show installation of water and sewer in Waycroft and, according to the map, it showed 110 feet of sewer which it is claimed the Investment Corporation still owes the county for.

Attorney Farr, for the defense, admitted he was taken by surprise and strongly objected to its admission as evidence. It was permitted in the record with objection noted.

After more than two years' silence on the question, the possibilities of Arlington County becoming incorporated as a city of the first class loomed again last night when the Arlington County Civic Federation at its meeting failed to adopt the report of the legal action committee, which for the past two months has made a study on the question of a change in the present form of county government. The report carried with it recommendations that the county manager plan be adopted.

Following the reading of the report by Chairman Robert N. Anderson, who explained it in detail, a general discussion was entered into by the delegates attending the meeting.

The views taken by many was that they did not feel willing to take part in sponsoring by the federation of any particular new form of government until all phases of the question are thoroughly studied by all members of the organization.

The only reference to incorporation in the report was:

"That Arlington County needs a government having all the powers of a city of the first class, such as would result from incorporation, but that it was deemed inadvisable at this time on account of the large amount of funds which the county would lose from the gasoline tax."

It was voted to hold another meeting Tuesday night, September 16, when the matter will be again considered.

The Arlington Rotary Club will hold its weekly meeting today at the Washington Golf and Country Club at 12:30 o'clock.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will meet today at 12 o'clock at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse on Clarendon avenue, with A. B. Honts presiding.

The Arlington County School Board will meet tonight in the offices of County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp. It is expected that at this meeting the board will announce the date of the fall opening of the county public schools.

YOUTHFUL PRISONER ESCAPES FROM JAIL

Alexandria Lad, 10, Flees After Being Locked Up for Burglary.

WAR VETERAN TO SPEAK

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Alexandria apparently has — or, rather, did have—a master criminal so large in misdeeds and so small in stature as to be the despair of the local police department. This missing master criminal is described as a mild-appearing colored boy, and about the only description of this diminutive 10-year-old habitue of most any place except the Alexandria jail is that he is small enough to escape through an 8-inch aperture and clever enough to make the aperture for himself.

This Negro lad, Clayton Dudley by name, appears to enjoy playing hide-and-seek with Alexandria's Finest. He first gained notoriety on July 19, when Detective Sergt Edgar Sims, investigating a report that the warehouse room of W. C. Jester had been burglarized, "detected" Clayton lying in a trunk, which, at first blush, appeared to be empty. Sergt. Sims, scorning to call for help, took the "desperado" to police headquarters, and on the following day Judge W. S. Snow, taking into consideration the youth of the prisoner, paroled him in custody of relatives with the understanding that Clayton would be taken so far away from here that he would never find his way back.

Clayton was again picked up on a charge of burglary, by Policeman Posey this time. Judge Snow directed that the boy be transferred to a State institution until he had gained his majority. Pending transfer, Clayton was locked in the detention room on the second floor at police headquarters.

Yesterday morning Policeman Baker, station keeper, went up to see how the lad was getting on all by himself, and to his amazement found that Clayton evidently had not fancied his new quarters and had left there, without leaving a forwarding address. Investigation disclosed that the boy had wrenched aside two steel bars over the transom of the detention room door, making an opening of about 8 inches in width, had climbed through this small hole, wended his way to the police court rom, unbolted the dor and had gone away from there.

The police say that when Clayton Dudley again falls into their clutches he will be placed in a cell whence there is no escape. They said the same thing about Kid Lilly, another desperate character wanted for murder here and elsewhere, but the Kid is still at large. Perhaps they will have better luck with Kid Dudley, however.

Mrs. Aubrey Crane, who suffered a broken arm in an automobile accident on Tuesday afternon, was reported as resting comfortably yesterday evening at her home in Alexandria avenue, Braddock.

The Alexandria municipal swimming pool will close on Sunday next, after a record season.

A. B. DeVore, a World War veteran, who was in Siberia during that time, will address the Kiwanis Club today at the weekly luncheon meeting at 12:30 in the George Mason Hotel. Forest Patterson is chairman of a music committee for the day.

Miss Fanny Birch, aged 25 years, who lived at the home of Mrs. B. S. Nevitt, Swetnam, Fairfax County, died on Tuesday at the Alexandria hospital, of typhoid fever. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from Pohick Church, conducted by the Rev. C. A. Langston, the rector and burial was in Pohick Cemetery.

A short circuit in an automobile in the shed of the house, 823 Queen street, occupied by James Jasper, Negro, caused a fire shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday morning, which destroyed the automobile and shed and also damaged sheds of two adjoining houses, 821 and 825 Queen street, occupied respectively by E. M. Luckett and E. C. Hollander, Negroes. Fire Chief James M. Duncana estimated the damage at $400.

Albemarle Will Haul School Water Supply

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 3.—As a result of the prolonged drought in Albemarle, water will have to be hauled to some of the schools when they open Friday of this week, according to Superintendent A. L. Bennett.

"Arrangements were completed today," he said, "whereby water will be hauled for drinking purposes to Meriwether Lewis School, which will have an enrollment of 250 pupils. The wells that have been sunk during the summer give promise of providing ample water to supply the schools using them."

WILL OF PUBLISHER MAY BE CONTESTED

Van Lear Black, Jr., Retains Attorney as Father's Testament Is Read.

TOTAL SET AT $3,270,000

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Van Lear Black, publisher, capitalist and world flier, who disappeared into the night from his yacht on August 18, was legally adjudged to be dead today after a hearing, and his will, disposing of an estate of more than $3,000,000, was admitted to probate.

The presence in court of an attorney for Van Lear Black, jr., the eldest son, and two minor children of the publisher, who asked for a delay in recognizing the instrument, indicated the possibility that an attempt to break the will might be made, but none would discuss this.

Capt. John N. Kelly, of the yacht Sabalo, a steward and Mr. Black's valet, Percy Sellers, testified that they believed he had fallen overboard accidentally while sitting on the rail of the yacht, but the three judges of the Orphans Court, who conducted the hearing, ruled only that the fact of death had been established and that the will should be admitted.

Bequests Are Specified.

Van Lear Black, jr., was made the beneficiary of a lifetime trust fund of $50,000 by the will, made in London in January of this year, shortly before Mr. Black started a flight to Tokyo.

A daughter, Mrs. T. Buchanan Blakistone, was bequeathed $250,000 and a share in the residuary estate, and her husband $100,000, but Van Lear, jr., was given only the $50,000 trust fund and the publisher's widow, Mrs. Jessie Gary Black, and the other four children are to share only in the residuary estate after special bequests totaling more than $1,000,000 are paid.

Control of the A. S. Abell Co., publishers of the Baltimore Sun and the Evening Sun, are given to the publisher's brother, Harry C. Black, who was bequeathed all Van Lear Black's share in the company and made trustee of the estate.

Special bequests included $100,000 to Mrs. J. Walter Lord, widow of a man who was Mr. Black's lifetime friend. Mrs. Lord, a distant family connection, was aboard the publisher's yacht the night he disappeared when the yacht was off the New Jersey coast en route from New York to Chesapeake Bay.

Secretaries Are Remembered.

Sums of $100,000 also were bequeathed to Thomas W. Rogan, of Baltimore, for 30 years the publisher's confidential secretary, and to Miss Allison Bone, his London secretary, who is the daughter of James Bone, editor of the London edition of the Manchester Guardian.

To the two Dutch pilots who accompanied him on his flights in his plane, the Maryland Free State, to Tokyo, the Dutch East Indies and to Cape Town, the will made bequests. G. J. Geysendorffer was given $25,000 and J. B. Scholte $15,000.

Petition for letters of administration estimated the value of the estate at $3,270,000, but attorneys said this figure was conservative.

The three witnesses at the hearing testified that Mr. Black was in good spirits at the start of the trip and that he had made plans for the future at his island home in the York River. Capt. Kelly estimates that the yacht was about 3 miles from shore, and he and the steward said they believed that the publisher could not have survived more than fifteen minutes after he fell from the rail into a fairly heavy sea.

RECORDS OF RACERS CHECKED IN CAPITAL

Van Orman Appears Winner of Fifth Consecutive Balloon Victory.

TWO APPARENTLY TIED

Cleveland, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—Although Ward T. Van Orman, of Akron, Ohio, holds the unofficial recognition as winner of this year's Gordon Bennett balloon race, the official decision tonight was waiting a check of barographs and other records by the National Aeronautical Association in Washington.

Piloting the Goodyear VIII, Van Orman, premier American balloonist, finished his flight from Cleveland near Boston last night, a distance of approximately 550 miles. Apparently it gave the United States its fifth consecutive victory and the second leg on the third Bennett Cup.

Unofficial standings of the other racers was: Capt. Ernest Demuyter, Belgium, landed at Adams, Mass., about 435 miles from Cleveland; the City of Detroit, piloted by Edmund J. Hill, landed at Coeyman, N. Y., 400 miles; Barmen (German), piloted by Dr. Hugo Kaulen, jr., landed Pittsfield, N. Y., 350 miles; City of Cleveland, Pilot Roland J. Blair, landed Copenhagen, N. Y., 350 miles; the Pierre Fisbach (France), Pilot Albert Boltard, landed Beamsville, Ontario, 360 miles.

The exact standing of the Barmen and the City of Cleveland, whose distances were estimated at 350 miles each, will be determined by the association.

NEW YORK HONORS ATLANTIC AVIATORS

Mayor Walker, knowing that he spoke English as well as his own language, insisted that he say a few words.

Coste, having had experience with receptions before, was perfectly at ease before the microphone that carried his words all over the country, but Bellonte was plainly stricken with overcowering stage fright. He started a sentence, hesitated, tried to finish it, forgot what he had meant to say, and retired blushing as the crowd thunderously applauded in approval of his modesty.

The fliers were taken to City Hall by a tortuous route, so that they might be given the same reception that has been tendered other ocean fliers. Taken aboard a yacht at an East River pier they were ferried around the foot of the island to a landing at the Battery. Though it was midafternoon, Broadway was packed with crowds on both sides from curb to buildin- line, and as the procession moved up the heroes' trail between the sky scrapers of the financial district ticker tape and torn paper snowed down, so that the fliers were soon garlanded with floating streamers.

Another to Fly Back.

After the mayor had delivered his welcome and congratulated them on turning the North Atlantic from a one-way street into a two-way thoroughfare, the procession proceeded uptown and along Fifth avenue to the fliers' hotel. Resting but a few moments they left again for Valley Stream to inspect their scarlet sesquiplane and make sure that it was ready for an early start on its long flight tomorrow.

For the evening their only engagement was attendance at a dinner given by the German-American Alliance for Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, the German flier, who with two companions preceded Coste and Bellonte in the westward crossing, taking another route, however, and making several stops along the way.

After the Texas flight, Coste announced today, his famous flying Question Mark will be flown back to France by Paul Codos, who holds jointly with him several world records for distance flying.

COSTE, BELLONTE PLAN CAPITAL VISIT

from Paris to Dallas, Tex., the President said that he would certainly not stand in the way of the fliers collecting this prize, and, therefore, set Monday as the time for the official welcome.

Lindbergh Also Expected.

Among celebrities expected to be here to greet the French fliers, The Post learns, are Col. Lindbergh, who will fly here from New York either Sunday or Monday in his own plane.

The French fliers are scheduled to take off for Dallas, Tex., this morning to claim the $25,000 prize offered for the frist flight from Paris to Dallas with one stop. Then they are scheduled to return to New York before coming to Washington.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, chief of police, announced that he would make police arrangements as soon as he received the official program.

In any event, a motorcycle escort will be provided the fliers and reserves will be thrown around the White House, the French Embassy and other places that the fliers visit.

DALLAS PREPARES TO RECEIVE FLIERS

was cooperating with Mike Fewell of the aviation department of the Chamber of Commerce in formulating plans for entertaining Coste and Bellonte during their stay, which is expected to be brief, as they plan to start back East for a visit to Washington as soon as possible after reaching here.

Should the air heroes leave New York at 8 a. m. (E.S.T.) as planned and arrive here in ten hours as Coste expressed confidence in doing, they would bring the Question Mark down at Love Field at 5 p. m. (C.S.T.).

Aviation experts here, however, were of the opinion that the flight would require around 16 hours, which would delay the arrival until after nightfall. In this event the fliers would find a Texas moon mixing its radiance with the airport beacons.

By air line the distance is slightly more than 1,300 miles, but if the air mail route via Cleveland, Chicago and Kansas City is followed the flight would be lengthened to more than 1,700 miles.

Associates of Col. Easterwood, who has been hanging up aviation prizes for aviation feats for a number of years without ever having to pay one, until now, said they had not received direct authorization to present the purse to Coste and Bellonte. They expressed belief that the money had been posted in a New York or Paris bank under the contract which Easterwood made with the fliers recently in France.

Gov. Dan Moody expressed fear that a previous engagement would detain him at Austin, but he was expected to delegate some one to tender an official greeting in his behalf.

Dublin, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Col. W. E. Easterwood, of Dallas, Tex., who offered $25,000 for a transatlantic flight ending at Dallas, declared tonight that he was "the most satisfied man in the world" at the success of Capt. Costes' voyage.

"This has been the happiest day of my life and I am glad it was spent in Dublin," he said. "This flight is one of the biggest things in aviation the world has yet seen."

The Texas oil magnate has been making a brief visit to Dublin, from which city his great-grandfather emigrated to the United States.

ANNE ARUNDEL ADDS 2,000 NEW VOTERS

Interest in Coming Primary Keen as Taxpayers League Picks Candidates.

ORGANIZATION IS FOUGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 3.—Indicating the interest that the primary election in Anne Arundel County next Monday is attracting, 2,000 new voters were added to the registration lists, according to figures compiled today. Leaders of the rival parties were active in every district and increases were general in the several voting precints.

The heaviest registration was in the Fifth District, most of which is adjacent to Baltimore City, the figures showing 296. Annapolis, which is the Sixth District, was second with 248.

Taxpayers' League Acts.

Both Democrats and Republicans have primary contests on their hands for legislative offices, except Senator, and practically all county officers.

The Taxpayers' League of the county, following a series of conferences today finally took a definite stand in behalf of candidates. The league, organized four years ago, has for its main objects good government, and is nonpartisan as far as party politics is concerned.

Several weeks ago it was made known that the league would support candidates for offices, based upon their general qualifications, but as matters developed it appears that sentiment was strongly against the so-called Democratic "organization" forces, with the result that candidates supported by the faction have been passed by entirely and the league has let it be known what candidates would be indorsed.

These are listed as follows: For House of Delegates, Louis L. Seibert, James W. Gardner and Dr. Gorton H. Calude; for county commissioners, R. Wilson Carr, First District; Fred W. Carlson, Second District; Romeo F. Redmiles, Fourth District; R. Pierson Leitch, Seventh and Eighth districts.

May Support Curry.

No action was taken as regards a candidate for sheriff, each party having three in the field, but the league indicated that it would throw its support to City Police Sergeant William Curry, whose name will appear on the ballot at the general election in November by petition as an independent. As to the county treasurership, the league not only passed over C. Albert Hodges, Democratic organization candidate, unopposed in the primaries, but indorsed George H. Shepherd, Eighth District, former Democrat, who is running as a Republican in the primaries.

No formal action was taken as to the court clerkship or State senatorship for which there is no primary fight within either party.

Well Is to Supply Culpeper Water

Town Will Use Supply at Shaft Sunk During Oil Hunt.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 3.—The rapid diminution of flow in Mountain Run, the source of Culpeper's water supply, caused the town council last night to instruct Town Manager S. L. Von Gemmingen to take immediate steps to assure an adequate water supply by connecting the town mains with a deep well, 3 miles outside the corporate limits.

The well specified is one drilled by a corporation several years ago in a vain search for oil. Drilling was abandoned at a depth of about 800 feet when the flow of water became too great for the drillers to handle. Several weeks ago, when the local water situation first became critical, town authorities had the well opened up. Tests showed a minimum flow of about 200,000 gallons per day from the well.

This supply should be sufficient to tide the town over the drought as the daily consumption has been reduced to about 150,000 gallons.

FACTIONS SEEKING MONTGOMERY VOTE

Organization and Progressive Democrats Drive for New Support.

DIVORCE SUITS FILED

With both the organization Democrats and the progressive Democratic party, also known as the antiorganization faction, claiming credit for the almost phenomenal registration which surprised Montgomery County politicians Tuesday, intensive work to divert the new voters to the opposing folds has been started by party workers. In the meantime county election officials are hurrying preparations for what probably will be the largest vote ever cast in a primary in Montgomery County next Monday.

Tuesday's registration brought approximately 4,600 new voters to the election books and brought the total rgistration of the county to approximately 24,000. Of those who registered Tuesday there are only 324 who registered as Republicans. Republican leaders explain this by pointing out that there is no Republican primary contest, all the Republican candidates having been selected at a convention held in Kensington. Republican new voters will register at the registration held on two days of next month before the general election.

Meetings are being held every night this week in various parts of the county by both the factions of the Democratic party in an effort to line up the support for their ticket Monday.

Approimately 10,600 Montgomery County children will have their vacation ended Wednesday by the reopening of school, it was announced yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome.

A meeting of county school teachers will be held Monday to plan for the school year's activities. Superintendent of Schools Broome will preside. Miss C. Mabel Smith, of the Teachers' College, Columbia University, will address the meeting on "The Place and Function of Activity in a Unit."

Following the meeting, a session of the County Teachers Association will be held, at which E. M. Douglass, president of the association, will preside. Mr. Douglass is principal of the Takoma-Silver Spring High School.

The teachers will work all day Tuesday in their classrooms in preparation for the influx of students on Wednesday. The colored schools will begin classes Tuesday, however.

One of the interesting items about this year's school course is the announcement that work on the course of study revision has advanced so far that the social study units will be part of this year's curriculum.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer C. Powick, of Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday applied for legalization of their adoption of Frances Warples, a ward of the Maryland Children's Aid Society. Through Attorney Vivian V. Simpson, of Rockville, they tell the Circuit Court at Rockville that they have become deeply attached to the child, which was left a foundling on the steps of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders, of Cabin John, May 7, 1929, at the age of about 5 months. Mr. Powick is a biochemist at the Bureau of Animal Husbandry, Department of Agriculture.

Suit for absolute divorce, alleging desertion, was filed in Circuit Court at Rockville yesterday by Rex R. Hill, of Washington. Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, the husband alleges that Mrs. Edith Virginia Hill, of Bethesda, Md., deserted him, taking with her their child. The husband tells the court that he is willing to continue the payment of the $25 per month he is now giving the mother for the care of the child.

Burton Lucas, of Rockville, Md., yesterday filed suit for absolute divorce from Mrs. Annie Lucas, of Rockville, alleging infidelity and naming a corespondent. Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane he asks custody of the two children.

Plans for the first annual exhibit of the Montgomery County Horse Show Association, which is to be held Saturday on the farm of Charles T. Nicholson, near Brookeville, are virtually completed, it was announced yesterday by Josiah W. Jones, of Olney, chairman.

Judges for the draft classes will be B. M. Hill and J. H. Brown, both of Howard County. Melvin C. Hazen will be judge in the saddle hunter, jumping and pony classes. The show program will conclude with a baseball game between Colesville and Brokeville and horse shoe pitching contests.

Joseph N. Starkey, who is running for the office of surveyor on an independent Democratic basis, yesterday issued the following statement:

"It is my desire to again represent the people of this county in the official capacity of surveyor for Montgomery County, which I have been for the past seven years.

"During that time it has been my ambition to keep the records of this county in the best of shape so that your property and my property would not be contaminated with the errors such as have occurred in years prior to my election thereto.

"The records which I have produced during my term of office are recorded in the courthouse at Rockville and will speak for themselves.

"My opponent, Mr. Charles J. Maddox, a fine old gentleman, has been surveyor for Montgomery County for 30 years prior to my election to that office and has served the office very well; that was years ago. We must remember that as the years go on we must continue our progress and not vote for a man who seven years ago decided to leave the surveyor's office, saying he was getting too old and decided to seek an office which would not be so strenuous on him. He came forth as a candidate for register of wills, for which he was defeated. To replace a man of that age would be one step backward for this county.

MONTGOMERY BOND SYSTEM DEFENDED

E. Brooke Lee Gives Reply to Critcs in Address at Damascus.

POLITICAL MOVE HINTED

Montgomery County's bonded indebtedness and the policy of the present county administration in carrying out its public improvement program through use of bond issues was outlined and explained last night at a Democratic organization meeting at Damascus by E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and one of the leaders of the county administration group in the coming primary next Monday.

Maj. Lee answered recent attacks made upon the county administration by the Progressive or anti-organization Democrats in connection with issuance of county bonds and their maturity requirements.

Opponents of the present county administration have charged that there are now too many bond issues in Montgomery County for public improvements and that future generations have been bonded and will continue to be bonded to pay for present improvements and proposed improvements.

Administration Defended.

Maj. Lee stated that the county administration has for years past followed the policy that capital improvements needed to build road and school systems of Montgomery County, the new courthouse and to provide a park system for the county must in part be paid only off in future years and by future generations.

"In 1910 the assessable basis of Montgomery County was $15,791,335; in 1920, the assessable basis of the county, $33,650,000; while 1930 finds the county with an assessable basis of $81,800,000—that is, the assessable basis has increased more than 500 per cent in twenty years.

"Notwithstanding that fact, we have not set up a bond retirement charge more than twice as great as our present annual bond requirement charge.

Retirement of Bonds.

"In 1930 Montgomery County retired $99,100 worth of bonds, and in 1929, $97,800 worth. Our highest requirement for the future is $202,500 in 1942, and our average bond retirement requirement for the next four years is approximately $140,000 per year.

"Montgomery County's road system has now entirely been taken over by the State of Maryland and will be maintained from the State gasoline tax.

"Our courthouse is planned to be a permanent building from which wings can be built as needed. Our schools are all well located on large school sites and will continue in use for indefinite periods of years.

"The antis simply are opposed to progress and want to follow the State of Virginia on a pay-as-you-go basis. We propose conservatively to bond the future of Montgomery County to improve the present and aid the future.

Opponents Are Criticized.

"It is typical that the antis, three days before an election, should produce, twist and distort bond figures of the county which are the most complicated and intricate figures incident to county government.

"However, the fact continues that the total bonded indebtedness of Montgomery County is $5,300,000 which represents approximately a 3¼ per cent bonded debt against actual favorable sales value of the property of the county.

"Conservative experts on municipal financing agree that bonded indebtedness for a growing county can well reach 10 per cent of the assessable basis of the county or could exceed the total amount of bonds that Montgomery County has issued by over 200 per cent."

Mrs. Hoover Views Home of Washington's Sister During Car Trip.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover and three women companions visited a number of the historic places here today.

Motoring down, the party arrived shortly before noon and visited several local shrines and antique shops where a number of small purchases were made.

The visitors spent some time at Kenmore, home of Betty Washington Lewis, sister of the first President, and they expressed their admiration of the restoration work now under way. In the registration book at Kenmore the President's wife signed her name as "Lou Henry Hoover." Mrs. Hoover declared that Fredericksburg held a high place in her interest and that she had long wanted to visit the many spots of historic importance.

NATIONALISTS OPEN SHANTUNG STRUGGLE

SHARP FIGHT IN HONAN

Shanghai, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Nationalist armies attacked rebel forces in Honan and Shantung Provinces today, renewing the struggle for control of China's government. Tientsin, stronghold of the northern alliance war lords, was the objective.

Telegraphing from field headquarters in northern Kiangsu, President Chiang Kai-Shek said his troops, which drove Northerners out of Tsinan, Shantung capital, August 15, clashed with insurgents north of the Yellow River. The drive toward Tientsin, chief port of north China, will be begun soon, Chiang said.

Sharp fighting in Honan, with rebels pushed back slightly, was reported by Chiang. He said a great drive by 400,000 Nationalists will start Friday, seeking to hurl rebels led by Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang out of the province where they have been entrenched since May.

Resumption of fighting followed a lull of ten days during which Chiang Kai-Shek failed to receive a reply to his offer of amnesty and pay to rebels to desert to the government ranks, forsaking their "traitorous" leaders, Feng Yu-Hsiang, and Yen Hsi-Shan, Governor of Shansi Province.

Floods were reported to have receded sufficiently to permit military operations, although battlefields were mud wallows.

National authorities laughed at Peiping dispatches reporting setting up of an independent government. Many officials claimed by insurgent leaders as members of their government were said by Nationalists to be loyal to them. Among those said to have enlisted under insurgent banners was Gen. Chang Hsueh-Liang, Governor of Manchuria, also claimed a Nationalist supporter.

about a yard square. They probably had been used on the balloon, sled and boat. The scientists were surprised to find so much and to find it so well preserved.

The two bodies found by Dr. Horn on desolate Hvitvoen (White Island) last month were definitely identified today as those of Salomon August Andree, and Nils Strindberg, handsome youthful companion who followed into the Arctic and preceded him in death.

Formal Statement Issued.

A formal statement issued by the experts, Hedren and Lithberg, says that only the skeletons of the bodies of Andree and Strindberg remain intact. The organic parts were very much deteriorated, and the clothing, though fairly well preserved, had been much torn, probably by animals.

"After the remains of the Andree expedition had been transferred to the hospital at Tromsoe," the statement says, "the experts began their work at 1:00 p. m., Tuesday.

"Simultaneously were transferred to the hospital such belongings aboard the Bratvaag as the sledge, the canvas boat with its contents and objects found in Andree's camp on White Island, including the log book and the diary found in the inner pocket of Andree's jacket.

Only Skeletons Remain.

"So far the remains of two men have been found. The organic parts are very deteriorated, but some of the garments are more or less fully preserved.

"From the initials on the clothes it emerges that these two men are the expedition's chief, Salomon August Andree, and his scientific assistant, Nils Strindberg.

"Only the skeletons of Andree's and Strindberg's bodies remain. The remains brought home are to be photographed in the conditions in which they now are. Immediately thereafter, examination of Andree's body will begin.

"The clothes are more or less torn to pieces, probably by animals.

"Andree had spread out his jacket over himself. Under the jacket were found some clothes, including a cap.

Two Books Found.

"A find of special interest was made on the back of the body. This consisted of two books wrapped in an undershirt and placed inside his clothes against his back.

"The first of these books contains only some geographical observations, on the first pages. The rest of the book is blank.

"The second book was a day book to record the journey on foot over the ice. This book is the most important thus far found to tell of the fate of the Andree expedition.

Writing Fills Diary.

"The book which Dr. Horn first found and preserved has writing on only the first pages," the statement continues.

"The new diary found here is completely filled with writing from cover to cover. It is written with a pencil, and the writing is quite legible.

"Examination of the clothes is made more difficult by their condition, and by the fact that before examination they had to be sprayed with a preservative to prevent their being torn.

"The examination, which was continued until midnight last night, was begun again at 9 o'clock this morning. We hope to finish the examination of Andree's body today."

Nobile Search Looms.

Discovery of the Andree expedition's camp and the bodies of its members on White Island has led scientists to hope that the six missing men from Gen. Umberto Nobile's airship expedition of 1928 may yet be found, or at least their bodies.

An expedition to search for them is understood to be projected for next summer. Gen. Nobile is said to be one of the organizers, but the expedition is not an Italian one.

The six for whom search will be made are the men lost with the Italia's gas bag. They have never been accounted for.

'Legs' Diamond Ordered Out of Aix La Chapelle

Aix la Chapelle, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Jack (Legs) Diamond, American gangster, was ordered out of Germany today by the Prussian minister of the interior after examination by physicians failed to disclose ailments requiring treatment at German spas. Diamond said he was in Germany to take baths for a stomach ailment.

Local authorities were ordered to escort Diamond by "the shortest route to a vessel sailing for America" in the official communique of expulsion as a "troublesome foreigner."

NYE ADJOURNS SPY INQUIRY BY COMMITTEE TO SEPT. 15

Dak., or grinding a hand organ for a dancing monkey' my answer to the question of the Senate candidate as to what I shall do is only this:

"That no matter how unpleasant and distasteful is the responsibility in Illinois, I shall, so far as I am able to do so, continue to guide the investigation in Illinois along those same lines thus far followed by the committee—lines which can be accepted as a credit to the legislative body which we serve, and in such a manner as will be ultimately approved by the most severe of honest and unprejudiced critics of the Senate, and to follow this course with continuing instructions to our very small staff of assistants to use none but clean and honorable methods in ascertaining facts which have relation to the conduct and expenditures of any campaign for the United States Senate.

"The committee will not be diverted from its clearly defined duty by any smoke screen laid down through a will to threaten, intimidate and influence."

The Senate committee, which for two days has been taking testimony concerning Mrs. McCormick's investigation into its activities, adjourned late today until September 15.

Senator Nye and Senator Porter Dale, of Vermont, who has been sitting with him, immediately went into conference.

"I am confident that September 15 we shall have all the members of the committee here to continue the investigation of this angle of the committee's business, Senator Nye said. "We shall first take up other evidence of this spying, and then continue with the campaign funds investigation.

Nye Asks About Bash.

"I don't suppose the public generally sees the relation between this angle and the campaign of any political candidate, but we shall bide our time and let that phase take care of itself."

Senator Nye devoted his efforts during the afternoon largely to obtaining information concerning one "R. F. Bash," who was subpenaed by the committee Friday at Fargo. He was served, but failed to appear, although he was registered at a Fargo hotel.

"In all probability this 'R. F. Bash,' whom the committee considers a very important witness, is the R. F. Bashford the Dannenberg detective agency has testified was in its employ and sent to Fargo with C. Clark Albers, to shadow the committee, after its return from Glacier National Park," Senator Nye said.

The surprise witness of the day was Lloyd E. Bemis, Chicago accountant, employed by the committee.

Bemis testified that one of Mrs. McCormick's agents had endeavored to obtain an interview with him and later telephoned to "tell me how I might avoid being shadowed." He said this man, who introduced himself as "Dennis," asked him if such information, with the knowledge that his every move was watched because he was an employe of the Nye committee, would not "be worth at least $10."

Identified as Wilson.

Bemis identified the operative as Kenneth Wilson, who preceded him on the stand.

Wilson testified that, after Dannenberg had been retained by Mrs. McCormick to shadow Senator Nye, he was approached by a David Stevenson Groh, who suggested that "they might be able to do business."

"Groh introduced himself to me under an alias," Wilson said. "He met me in a restaurant and arranged to pay me $25 for information, collected in this case. He also offered me a salary of $40 a week, to obtain office files for him, and give him inside information about the operation of our office, how it could be entered in off-hours and who was there during holidays. I took the proposition to Mr. Dannenberg and gave him the money. We supplied Groh with information of no value and he seemed satisfied. We found that he was gathering it for our opponents."

During the afternoon session Wilson returned to the stand to deny he had made Bemis any proposition, or had had any dealings with him.

Other witnesses were W. C. Dannenberg, who previously testified that Mrs. McCormick paid him $1,500 "down" to shadow Senator Nye following the robbery of her files and the discovery of a strange woman in the closet of her Drake apartment. John Dannenberg and Earl Dannenberg, his brothers, also appeared. They were not available for yesterday's sessions.

Dannenberg was ordered in the subpena served yesterday to produce his records pertaining to the case. Instead he arrived this morning with his attorney, who pleaded a continuance until September 15.

North Dakota Bandits Get $3,500 From Bank

Kramer, N. Dak., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Two men held up the Kramer State Bank today, locked R. N. Sletten, assistant cashier, in the vault, and escaped with $3,500.

Sletten gave the alarm from inside the vault and was released a few minutes later.

Veterans Ask New Site for Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Although it selected Huntington for its next convention city, the West Virginia American Legion went on record today in the closing session of its eleventh annual convention here as being vigorously opposed to that city as the site for the Federal Veterans' Hospital recently authorized for the State by Congress. A resolution called upon President Hoover and the Federal Hospitalization Board to reconsider the decision to locate the hospital at Huntington and asked that the institution be placed in some more central, accessible spot, where higher altitude will contribute more to the health of patients.

A resolution asking discontinuance of the annual State appropriation of $50,000 to assist disabled veterans on the ground that Federal aid now makes State funds unnecessary was tabled, it being held that many veterans receiving Federal hospitalization are without money and need this extra State aid.

Louis A. Johnson, Clarksburg attorney, was chosen department commander. Other officers chosen are: Edward McGrail, Parkersburg, department vice commander; Rupert Rolls, Fairmont, department vice commander at large; Frank Greenlee, Charleston, finance officer; Lant Slaven, Williamson, judge advocate; the Rev. Blanton Belk, Huntington, chaplain; Edward Blake, Ronceverte, historian; and Meade Smeltzer, Logan, sergeant-at-arms. Delegates and alternates to the national convention also were elected.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN STUDY IN BALTIMORE

BASEBALL GAME TODAY

Sixty-six volunteer firemen, gathered from all over Maryland to attend a short course in fire fighting, yesterday journeyed to Baltimore where they were treated to a lecture and demonstration on metropolitan methods. Baltimore firemen showed them how to lower persons from burning buildings, how to scale walls, and the proper ventilation of burning buildings to prevent the formation of gases.

The five-day course began Monday and will close Friday afternoon. Lectures are being given by the University of Maryland in the university buildings at College Park. The faculty in the short course includes Dr. A. N. Johnson, dean of the school of engineering of the university; Walter R. Hough, general chairman of the Baltimore Safety Council, and Sherwood Brockwell, who presides. Mr. Brockwell is fire marshal of North Carolina. He has also spoken in firemen's schools in that State and in Florida.

Today there will be lectures on structural hazards and the care of fire equipment and apparatus, to be given by Maj. J. H. Howland and Calvin G. Lauber, of the engineering staff of the National Board of Fire Underwriters in New York City.

This afternoon there will be a baseball game and tonight there will be more lectures. These will treat of raising funds for a volunteer department and the formation of an ambulance service. Moving pictures showing the proper methods of producing artificial respiration will be shown.

West Virginia Drought Relief Meeting Is Held

Special to The Washington Post.

Romney, W. Va., Sept. 3. — Fifty bankers from West Virginia counties in the Second Congressional District, with a dozen county agricultural agents, spent today here discussing financial relief for drought-stricken areas, with H. S. MacKay, manager of the Baltimore Intermediate Credit Bank, holding the center of the stage most of the time. No formal action came out of the meeting. Those present were luncheon guests of Representative Frank L. Bowman, of the district.

They included State Commissioner of Agriculture John W. Smith and his assistant, C. H. Hartley, both of Charleston, and Nat T. Frame, Morgantown, director of University of West Virginia extension work. Mr. Frame presided. He announced that the meeting here is the first of six such which will be held throughout the State.

Escaped Ohio Convict Trapped as Two Flee

Pleasantville, Ohio, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Two of the three convicts who escaped from the penitentiary brick plant at Junction City today eluded a posse of Prison guards and farmers in a woods near here late today and escaped in the general direction of Columbus. The third convict was said to be trapped in the woods.

Armed with pistols, a rifle and a shotgun, the escaped convicts were pursued by the posse, which likewise was armed with all sorts of weapons, including submachine guns. After abandoning their automobile here, the convicts went into the woods closely pursued by the posse. While the possemen were surrounding the large tract of woodland, two of the convicts slipped out and escaped again.

When Pain Comes
Two hours after eating
What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.
One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.
Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.
"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

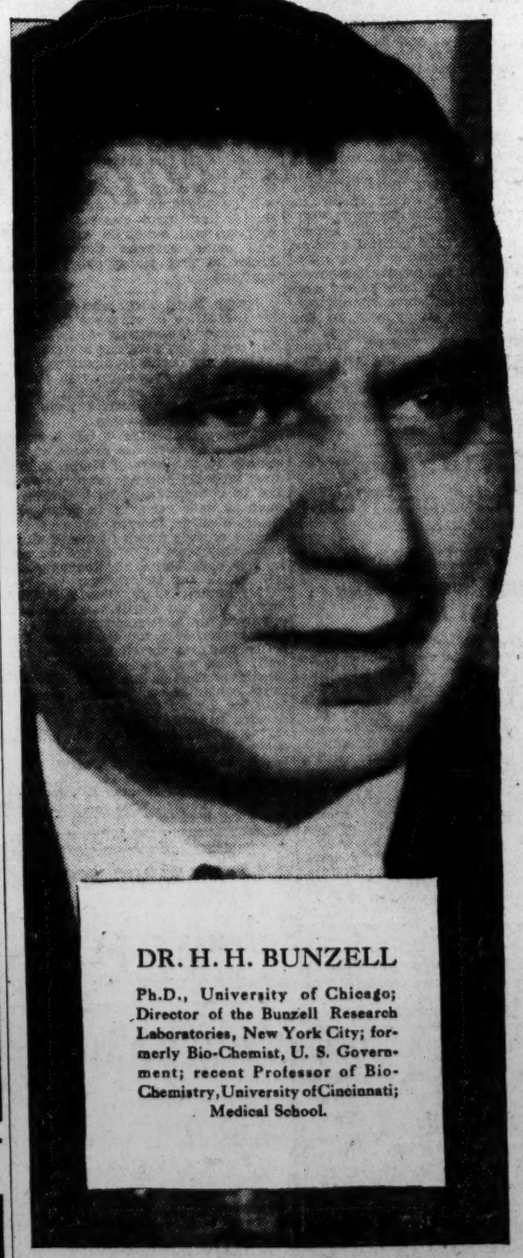
"Colgate's is to be preferred . . ." says Dr. H. H. Bunzell
Ph.D., University of Chicago


DR. H. H. BUNZELL
Ph.D., University of Chicago; Director of the Bunzell Research Laboratories, New York City; formerly Bio-Chemist, U. S. Government; recent Professor of Bio-Chemistry, University of Cincinnati; Medical School.
"What can a dentifrice really do?" Dr. Bunzell makes public his findings after years of study on the subject in a great eastern university—and he reveals some important truths.
Dr. Bunzell says:
"A dentifrice whose sole object is to clean the teeth, such as Colgate's, and which is made primarily from the most effective cleansing agents, is to be preferred to one which relies on ingredients put in to affect other objects such as the attempts to correct the acidity of the saliva.
"No relationship can be found between the conditions of the teeth and the degree of acidity found in the saliva."
A DENTIFRICE, Dr. H. H. Bunzell believes, is made with one object—and only one—to clean the teeth. And so he approves Colgate's. Colgate's—with its penetrating foam; Colgate's—with its power of reaching the hidden surfaces where food lodges and is most apt to cause decay.
Ordinary toothpastes—sluggish, pasty dentifrices—are not active enough.
Tests show Colgate's superiority. And dentists encourage its use. For 50 years they have been advising this one toothpaste. More people use it today than any other.
Agreeing with Dr. Bunzell are such eminent authorities as Dr. Hardee Chambliss, Ph. D., Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health, New York City, and scores of others equally well known who have been retained to make analytical tests and to render their expert opinions.
And, despite its high quality, this superior toothpaste sells at only 25 cents the tube. Your teeth need, your teeth deserve, this daily care.

25c
The price is important—but the quality—not the price—has held Colgate leadership for 30 years.

SOVIET RECOGNITION URGED BY WHEELER

He and League Head, Back From Visit, Say Europe Gets Red Trade.

OTHERS ARE LESS FRANK

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—From Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, and from S. Stanwood Menken, president of the National Security League, both of whom returned from Europe today, came statements today that Soviet Russia should be recognized by the United States.

Senator Wheeler, who for years has advocated Russian recognition, returned from a visit to that country more convinced than ever, he said, that the United States should recognize the Soviet government. Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota, who accompanied him on an unofficial visit to Russia, were less outspoken in their views but said they encountered a friendly reception wherever they went.

Menken, avowed foe of communism who recently advocated deportation laws to oust Communists, declared recognition would be "the moral and sensible thing to do," but that his opinion of communism remains unchanged.

Although he did not visit Russia, Menken said his conversation with informed persons in European cities all indicate the Soviet government is a stable one, led by able men and should be recognized.

"We have been hiding our heads in the sand," he said. "The Russians are a great people, doing a great constructive work. We can't shut our eyes to their existence and, although it may take 25 years to show the success of their experiment, they are making rapid economic strides."

Senator Wheeler declared the United States is "a bunch of suckers" in failing to recognize the Soviet government.

"Everywhere I went abroad I found the argument that America should not recognize Russia, while everywhere abroad Russia is recognized and the European countries are getting all of the business. Should we recognize Russia and enter into commercial treaties that does not mean we put the stamp of approval on their form of government.

"Russia, to my mind, represents the greatest potential market in the world for American-made goods."

Senator Barkley said he had seen more than he anticipated in Russia, but declined to express an opinion on the country. "But I can say that if Russia continues to maintain a stable government, the United States will have to consider how long it can defer recognition."

PRESIDENT TO MAKE OCTOBER SPEECHES

campaigns, of course. He usually is. He is the head of the party and the one with whom a party rises or falls. Yet Senator Fess' statement that Mr. Hoover would be the issue did attract more than passing attention at the time and this was because there had been a widespread impression that Mr. Hoover, following new political lines rather than the old, did not intend to let himself be drawn into the forthcoming campaign. The picture of him during his first set-to with Congress was that he did not have much sympathy for it, the manner in which it did business and the motives that actuated its members.

Senator Fess made his statement that Mr. Hoover would be the issue after a lengthy conference with him. And there have been seemingly authoritative stories since, though they may not have been, that the senator did not have to put up a fight to get Mr. Hoover to assent to building the campaign entirely around him.

According to these stories, the President himself, wanted it that way.

Topics of Speeches.

These seemingly authoritative stories of his attitude on the matter were that he considers the country friendly to him and sympathetic in problems he has had to face. It is said to be inconceivable to him that the country should hold him responsible for the depression and certainly not the drought.

This being his attitude, he is represented as being ready for the November test, not desirous of dodging it.

It is assumed that all his addresses will be appropriate to the situation, which means that that before the bankers at Cleveland will be on finance, that before the Labor Federation on unemployment. Both will give him an excellent opportunity of "selling" his administration in a way that will not be politically offensive or inappropriate for a President.

Butler Looms in Bay State.

As the wind seems to be blowing now, when he appears in Boston, former Senator William M. Butler will have been nominated in the Republican senatorial primary. Reports have it that he has the edge now, and the primary is only about two weeks hence.

With Butler Massachusetts Republicans intend to make a determined effort to win in November, although a few months ago Massachusetts was almost conceded to the Democrats. Butler, it so happens, is making a strong play for labor with whom he has not heretofore been enamored. He is advocating, for one thing, a constitutional amendment to apply the eight-hour law to the cotton mills of the South.

Both Massachusetts and Ohio are considered two of the most vulnerable Republican States this year. In Ohio the Democrats have put up a very strong candidate against the father weak Senator McCulloch. In Massachusetts the Republicans have perked up because the Democrats seem about to bungle their opportunity in the matter of their ticket.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

THOSE interested in the final adjudication of the differences between the Motion Picture Theater Owners of Washington and the Musicians' Union, Local No. 161, in controversy now for several weeks, have been on the qui vive for some word during the last two days to the effect that final settlement was at last on the way. The call, however, has not come.

At least, the call had not come as this was being written Wednesday evening, both A. C. Hayden, president of the musicians' local organization, and A. Julian Brylawski, president of the theater owners, being, as you might say, on tenterhooks, so impatiently are they awaiting the summons to the next all-important conclave in New York.

At time of writing, it may safely be said that the opposing factions are getting together no closer rapidly! Things are precisely, or thereabouts, where they were before the scene of battle shifted to Manhattan to batter down the impasse that had been reached here. In fact, I am even led to believe that the report circulated here that the projectionists' national organization's fiat that its members walk out in sympathy with the musicians, provided an agreement with the managers proved impossible, had been rescinded, is not correct. That order was merely held in abeyance for the period of the two-weeks' extension granted the parties to the musicians' contracts normally expiring August 31.

For what it is worth, it may be said further that in numerous other cities where the same conditions have prevailed as now confront Washington, St. Louis, for example, the musicians have walked out but the projectionists and stage hands have not gone with them, except where specifically released on two weeks' notice.

For some reason or other, it seems to be the desire to make the Capital an exception to the general rule—perhaps because it is the Capital.

Or so it appears to an outsider looking in.

There is a strong probability that the Little Theater on Ninth street near F soon will be thrown open again for at least a brief season of special screen attractions not primarily made for, or adapted to, presentation on the regular programs of the first-run houses.

Terry Turner, formerly director of exploitation for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and latterly an independent producer and distributor, is desirous of obtaining The Little for an extended run of a foreign-made production bearing the completely expository title of "Birth." From the very nature of this authoritative and informative study in obstetrics, the engagement presumably would alternate segregated audiences of men and women, as has been done frequently before at the same house.

Things continuing as they are another week, the incoming attractions at the downtown, first-run picture theaters, beginning Friday and Saturday, will be as follows: Metropolitan, Al Jolson in "Big Boy;" Palace, Ramon Novarro in "Call of the Flesh;" Fox, George O'Brien in "The Last of the Duanes;" RKO-Keith's, Jeanette MacDonald and Jack Buchanan in "Monte Carlo;" Earle, Dorothy Mackaill and Lewis S. Stone in "The Office Wife;" Columbia, Greta Garbo in "Romance," second week.

Tom Olsen, the newly appointed adjective and adverb man at the Fox, being a comparative stranger in our midst, amused himself Tuesday by celebrating a birthday anniversary in secrecy infinitely more profound than that in which he enshrouds the attractions at his theater. I don't know how many candles were on the cake—if there was a cake with candles on it—but I should say not over 60 or 70, at the most!

Speaking of the Fox and birthdays, that ornate cathedral of the celluloids will be 3 years old come Friday, September 19. In observance of the event, the management announces a special Third Anniversary Week Program, to begin on the natal date.

The screen attraction will be a new dialogue version of Jack London's vivid story of "The Sea Wolf," with Milton Sills in the colorful role of "Wolf" Larsen. The stage offering will be Fanchon and Marco's "Broadway Venuses," in which twelve winners of a recent New York beauty contest will be featured—which doesn't sound at all like a bad "Idea." Eddie Peabody will tweak his banjo appropriately to the occasion and Bob West will wallop the Wurlitzer in a special organlogue.

I trust Mr. Meakin will restrain himself from making a speech and go into his dance instead.

And if you are still hot for hokum you may care to know that:

Gavin Gordon, who appears opposite Greta Garbo in "Romance," at Loew's Columbia, rehearsed his lines for the part while flat on his back, having sustained a broken collar bone in an automobile crash just before the picture went into work.

The "Know Your Government" lobby exhibit at the Fox next week will be furnished by the National Committee of Wood Utilization of the Department of Commerce. This display is being especially transferred from Convention Hall in Atlantic City, N. J., for exhibition at the Fox.

"School Days" is the title of Bob West's organlogue for the week beginning tomorrow at the Fox—which ought to make him almost as popular as poison ivy with the kids who love their teacher, but * * *

Alfred Werker, who directed George O'Brien in "The Last of the Duanes," knows his West and "Westerns," having translated many of the late Fred Thomson's thrillers from script to silver sheet.

"At home," beginning Saturday at the Palace—Wesley Eddy.

So Mrs. McCormick has herself a look at this investigating business from the Nye side!

EFFORTS TO LOCATE JUDGE CRATER FAIL

New York Paper Informed Man Not Missing as Wife Continues Search.

GONE SINCE AUGUST 6

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Mystery concerning the whereabouts of Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Crater, reported missing since August 6, deepened today.

While the New York Evening Post was informed by telephone from the justice's summer home at Belgrade Lake, Me., that he is not missing, it was stated at the office of United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, the justice's former law associate, that Mrs. Crater had been there several times to confer about her husband's disappearance.

The New York police have not been asked to look for the justice, but the office of the attorney general reported efforts to locate him in the past three weeks have been unsuccessful.

Informant's Identity Questioned.

The Evening Post's informant, who identified himself as "Mr. Crater," said, "we are not making any search for Justice Crater because he has not disappeared." Inquiry at Senator Wagner's office disclosed the justice has no children and the only "Mr. Crater" would be the jurist's father, who was in Florida at the last report.

Available information set the date of Justice Crater's disappearance as August 6, after purchasing a single theater seat at a ticket brokerage. The ticket office girl said he seemed in good spirits and spoke of joining his wife the next day at their Maine home.

Examination of Justice Crater's accounts showed he had drawn $3,500 from two bank accounts on that day. He was believed to have had $1,500 cash previously, making a total of $5,000.

Chauffeur Starts Search.

The next day the Crater chauffeur drove from Maine to take his employer back to the resort. When the justice failed to appear at the appointed time the chauffeur communicated with the jurist's secretary, who joined him in visiting various hospitals, fearing the missing man might have been injured. Then they communicated with Mrs. Crater, who returned to New York.

Senator Wagner, traveling Europe, turned back on being notified and is expected to arrive tomorrow to join in the search.

Relatives and friends expressed the belief the justice may be the victim of foul play or of some accident that caused loss of memory.

Justice Crater has been on the bench since May 1 last, when he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of former Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, resigned. Justice Crater was scheduled to preside at a term of court beginning August 25. When he failed to appear another justice was directed to preside.

Detroit Hotel Designer Found Shot to Death

Detroit, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Paul Kamper, hotel owner, architect and member of a prominent Detroit family, was found shot to death today in an apartment of the Madrid Hotel, of which he was part owner. Police after an investigation said that Kamper had shot himself with a pistol found by his side.

Kamper, who was 33 years old, was associated with his father, Louis Kamper, in architectural work. The two designed several buildings, including the LaSalle Hotel, scene recently of the killing of Jerry Buckley, radio political commentator. Friends told police Kamper had been despondent over business affairs recently.

STUFF CALED SAWDUST

Two Washington men who police allege had been selling sawdust for fertilizer in nearby Montgomery County were arrested yesterday through the quick thinking of Mrs. Frank I. Williams, wife of The Washington Post auditor. The men were arrested by Montgomery County Policeman Joseph Nolte and lodged in th Silver Spring substation.

The men gave their names as Joseph Huston, 43 years old, and his son, Raymond Huston, 18, both of McLean avenue southwest near Third street. Both were charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and later released on bond.

The mistake the men made, police say, is thta they tried to work the same game on two families from the same office. Mrs. Willard Miller, wife of the circulation manager of The Post, who lives on the Colesville road near Silver Spring, had purchased a load of alleged sheep fertilizer and discovered it was sawdust. She told her troubles to her husband, who told his fellow worker, Mr. Williams, who in turn relayed the tale to his wife. When the men called on Mrs. Williams, of North Woodside, she told them to wait until she telephoned her husband and then called polic.

According to police, the men had sold a number of residents near Silver Spring by telling the housewives that they had brought a load of fertilizer to an address for which it had been ordered and found it to be vacant. They said they did not want to haul the load home again and offered the fertilizer at a low figure.

MRS. McCORMICK'S SLEUTHS.

Mrs. Ruth McCormick has taken a bold step in employing sleuths to trail Senator Nye, chairman of the Senate slush fund committee. She complains that her office was entered and her private papers taken, and apparently she lays the blame upon investigators employed by the Nye committee. Her method of meeting this situation is to hire detectives to shadow Senator Nye, presumably for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not he is in possession of the papers stolen from her office.

Now Senator Nye calls the McCormick detectives before his committee, and an interchange of typical sleuthing allegations is the result. Mrs. McCormick's detective asserts that the Senate detective tried to bribe him. The jurisdiction of the committee is challenged. Strange figures flit across shadowy screens, and vague hints of outrages and atrocities are put forth. "There is much indignation."

Espionage and counter-espionage are both repulsive and foolish, whether exercised by or against Government agencies. The public condemns such tactics. The Senate committee is not authorized to hire sleuths to break into private homes or offices, and Senator Nye's denial that the committee has taken such action should be accepted. And while there is no law prohibiting a citizen from hiring detectives to shadow others, it is an obnoxious practice that almost invariably brings embarrassment to the employer of sleuths. The detective feels bound to produce something "suspicious," and he has a poor imagination if he can not twist an innocent meeting into a diabolical plot.

The Supreme Court has held that evidence obtained by tapping telephones is admissible, even when the States have made wire-tapping a crime. The court held that the method of procuring evidence was a distinct matter, not to be confounded with the nature of the evidence, and that the common law does not concern itself with the manner in which evidence is procured. But this decision has been widely criticized, and legislation has been proposed which would make inadmissible any evidence obtained by tapping telephones. Public sentiment recoils against the conviction of defendants upon evidence obtained by obnoxious means, such as wire-tapping, the employment of stool pigeons, informers, &c. This public feeling has been effective in discouraging the use of informers in prohibition cases.

What effect the quarrel between Mrs. McCormick and the Senate committee will have upon her campaign remains to be seen. If she should be elected, doubtless Senator Nye will render a sizzling report recommending that she be denied admission to the Senate; but the Senate's decision will hardly be hinged upon her employment of sleuths. The charges and countercharges made by these sleuths have already passed the bounds of credibility and are only worthy of the wastebasket.

OLD AGE INSURANCE.

A growing need for a type of insurance through which people in ordinary circumstances can provide against indigence in their old age is seen by President Hoover. The demand for old age security is growing stronger every year. There is a tendency toward retirement at earlier ages. Industry finds it difficult to use elderly men, and unless a workman has been frugal enough to adopt a savings plan of his own he finds himself dependent upon his children or charity in his declining years. Labor has become sufficiently productive and wages are such that there is no reason why the workingman should be indigent in his old age, if he is offered a practical insurance policy.

Various attempts have been made to solve the problem through pensions systems. Eleven States have adopted old age pension laws, and organized movements are under way to put the aged of many other States on the dole. The demand for a Federal old age pension subsidy is increasing. It is timely that old age insurance be studied before the country plunges any further into these socialistic experiments.

The American theory of government is based on the assumption that the people can and will take care of themselves. Paternalism has never been welcomed in America. Sometimes it becomes necessary for governental units to help the people to help themselves, but the rights of the individual are valued so highly that any attempt to introduce socialistic schemes meets with opposition. Government is essentially political and ought to remain so.

From an economic standpoint the chief argument against old age pensions is that they encourage shiftlessness. When New York recently adopted such a law it was severely criticized by Gov. Roosevelt because it gave no incentive to men and women to save in their younger years. It provides, as do most of the other State laws, that a dole shall be passed out to dependent persons beyond 70 years of age. Any law that tends to discourage industry and initiative, or gives incentive for the people to live on a pittance from the Government instead of saving for periods of unproductivity, becomes vicious in its operation.

The American people do not need doles from either State or Federal governments. But there is vital need of a practical plan whereby every one can individually provide against dependency in the evening of life. If President Hoover appoints a commission that can devise such a plan and place it before the coutry he will be rendering an invaluable service.

WASHINGTON'S WELCOME.

Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte are to fly from New York to Dallas and return this week, and are to be the guests of President Hoover next Monday. The welcome that is extended to these fliers is a suitable expression of the admiration with which all Americans applaud superlative feats of skill and daring. It is also a tribute to France which is gladly paid. The felicitations exchanged by Presidents Hoover and Doumergue faithfully express the eagerness with which France and the United States recognize all influences that bind them together in historic friendship. The honors that were heaped upon Col. Lindbergh in Paris are justly due to Capt. Coste and his companion, Bellonte.

Plans are being made for a municipal greeting by citizens of Washington. The National Capital should find an opportunity of reciprocating the welcome which Paris extended to Col. Lindbergh. Capt. Coste and Maurice Bellonte are fine types of French citizens, through whom homage may be properly made to their capital and country. Their visit to Washington should be made memorable by a most cordial welcome by the people of this city.

FOOTBALL MOBILIZING.

The 1930 football season is under way. The Georgetown squad is at Point Lookout, Md. The New York teams, Columbia, City College, Fordham and New York University, have started the training grind. Pennsylvania's stalwarts are encamped at Cape May. One hundred and eighty-eight men are working out under Maj. Sasse at West Point. Holy Cross, Lafayette, Rutgers, Georgia Tech and North Carolina have large squads of pigskin-booters on the field. Except for the colleges that are bound by agreements to defer the start of the training season until the 15th of the month, the colleges of the country are getting down to the serious business of preparing for the football campaign of 1930.

A serious business it is! Huge stadiums have been built that must be made to carry the investment. The college that does not have at least a good, if not a winning, football team, finds it difficult to attract desirable students. Consequently, costly training camps are set up; large staffs of expert coaches, specialists in the various fields of play, are retained to groom their charges as they never will be groomed in intellectual or cultural matters, and elaborate publicity machines are set up to carry to the country the tales of the training camps, so that when the season opens the stadiums will be filled. This is to be the biggest and best football season of all time.

Again it will be urged that the colleges run to excess in sports. Certainly a little less emphasis on sport would be desirable if it were accompanied by increased devotion to educational and cultural attainment. But the chances are that if a damper were applied to football, college men would find other than intellectual and cultural outlets for their energies. Football, at least, focuses attention upon something that is clean and healthy. Of all popular sports it is least frequently besmirched with commercialism. For the few who are ready to decry the craze for football there are millions who impatiently await the blast of the whistle that will open the season of 1930.

THE NINETEENTH AMENDMENT.

The tenth anniversary of the nineteenth amendment to the Constitution, which extends the voting franchise to women, passed so quietly that it was hardly noticed by the public. No one could foresee in those days when women were picketing the White House, getting themselves arrested, and making militant addresses in all parts of the country that woman suffrage would be accepted without the slightest disruption of its regular routine.

The changes that have come about as a result of woman suffrage are so few that some of the militant campaigners doubtless wonder what they fought for. A good many women make use of the balloting privilege, but in general they divide upon issues in about the same ratio as men. The sweeping reforms of which the campaigners were wont to prate have not materialized.

The more discerning feminists saw, when the nineteenth amendment was finally proclaimed, that their fight had only begun. Women have gradually extended the scope of their political activities; a few more women are elected to the State Legislatures, to Congress and to various local positions, but on the whole they play a minor part in State and national affairs, usually confining their efforts to social legislation or measures for the benefit of women and children.

During the ten years that women have had the vote the feminists have discovered that suffrage was only one of the rights they were seeking. The tenth anniversary of the nineteenth amendment serves as occasion for launching a campaign for the proposed twentieth amendment, which would declare that "men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction." The National Woman's Party announces a "militant campaign" to enlist public opinion in favor of this new bill of feminine rights.

It is possible that the feminists may some day win sufficient backing to have this amendment written into the Constitution. A number of the States have already removed legal distinctions between the sexes, and the movement seems to be gradually gaining momentum. But "equal rights" will have as little effect on the status of women as political equality has had. Civilization extends privileges to the weaker sex, and they far outweigh all "rights" that can be bestowed by law. "Equal rights" may gain advantages for the few, but woman in general will continue to make her way in the world through the exercise of privileges accorded by the gallant male. Rights will become effective only where privileges fail.

The Supreme Court will be asked to decide whether it is the duty of a person in the back seat of an automobile to warn the driver of danger. That's not a duty; it's a prerogative.

A Chicago policeman is robbed of his gun, shield and $105. The loss of the money and shield should be easy to bear, but in Chicago it's pretty tough to lose your gun.

AS A CHILEAN SEES US

By CARLOS G. DAVILA,
Chilean Ambassador to the United States,
In an Address at Santiago.

I do not seek to disguise my profound gratification at this opportunity to make known the impressions gathered in the United States, that most vast crucible of culture and civilization of the present epoch. I return to come in contact with our national life in a culminating period of its evolution, coming from a country where already the forms of national life are molded and almost matured. I come from a country where already many things have become realities which for us are as yet tentative efforts, aspects and aspirations, and I feel genuine pleasure in submitting the small total of my observations on this germinating of forces and dreams which I feel are now palpitating in Chile.

North Americanism presents itself before the world as a fact which it is necessary to consider with realistic and dispassionate judgment. It is futile for the older civilization to resist it. The warning diffused in books and reviews is sterile because North Americanism is not only an economic reality, but is also a cultural reality. North America not only has created methods of production, it not only has brought into being characteristic systems of organization, it not only produces and sells. It has done more than that. It has created a manner of living. And side by side with its statistics of production, its manufactures, its banks and its stock exchange movement, it exhibits also the portentous figures which describe its cultural activity and reflect the idealistic inquietude of the American spirit.

This last aspect is the one which especially must not be lost sight of in seeking to appreciate the general program of North American life, because both are inseparable, dependent and complementary the one to the other. Those fabulous figures of production and the like would be impossible without those which in a synthetic summary I will give as a resume of the cultural effort of the United States:

One thousand universities with more than 1,000,000 alumni; 35,000 secondary and normal schools with 18,000,000 scholars, and 300,000 primary schools with more than 25,000,000 pupils.

The peculiar conditions of his nature, his singular position in history, his racial formation and education have created that which I have called the American manner of living or standard of life. The United States is fabricating a culture having its own characteristics and which seems destined to define, as did Athens and Rome, a vast cycle of human civilization.

Long ago the North American comprehended that action is quite as important as thought. The North American philosophers used abstract speculation, but constituted themselves makers of methods and spiritual adapters of the tendencies and models to which the American atmosphere was giving birth. The North American was face to face with hostile nature and had to overcome it. Thus activity and labor became the essence of the religion and philosophy of the American. An immense land stretched itself before the man of the north to be dominated and reduced to his ideas. What were needed were time and labor. The man accelerated the first and gave the second. He then needed time to think and time for the recreation of his soul, like a man who by his own labor has made a fortune and now disposes of a full day of liberty for enjoyment and meditation. * * *

One can not today speak of the United States on the basis of facts known fifteen years ago.

Basic conceptions have fundamentally changed there. They have changed in internal and in international policy; in the systems of production and systems of distribution.

The remuneration of work of the employe and workman has ceased to be a question of interest to the one who pays it. The purchasing power of the country, or rather the magnitude of the internal market for both industry and agriculture, depends upon this remuneration. And this is the basis of the economic life of a country, 90 per cent of the production of which is consumed in the domestic market. And it is easy to appreciate what this 90 per cent means when just the 10 per cent of its production which the United States exports places that country at the head of the world's international commerce.

JUST A MOMENT.

By STEPHEN B. STANTON.

Disowning of faults takes the form now of denial, now of repentance.

When we have found our own personally helpful gospel, we are no longer at the mercy of the world's claims and clamor.

Sometimes through thwarting ourselves, sometimes through self-satisfaction, we develop and attain.

How disconcerting the shallowness of what we once thought so deeply subtle.

One's ideals are in their nature the antithesis of one's life, being the measure of one's self-dissatisfaction.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE VERY GOOD LITTLE BOY.

Oh, Tommy was a willing lad
Who gladly went to school
And learned to read and write and add
And every rigid rule.
And Tommy never placed a pin
Upon his neighbor's chair
Or carried living reptiles in
The little girls to scare.

He never scuffed his feet about,
He never disobeyed.
This Tommy boy, week in, week out
A close attention paid.
It seems the curious whim he had
To be as good as gold,
And teachers should have liked the lad
Who did as he was told.

I do not mischief recommend
Nor disobedience praise,
'Tis not for that this verse is penned.
Though Tommy's perfect ways
Were all the teachers pleaded for,
Let now the truth be told,
They loved the little rascals more
They sometimes had to scold.

The Cabbages Won't Seem Like Roses If You Have No Rose-Tinted Glasses.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE goal of every man's ambition is happiness.

He may labor to win wealth or fame or devote himself to unselfish service, but in any case he does the thing that promises to make him happy.

And since happiness is the universal goal, the thing of greatest importance to the individual and to the race is the thing that has most power to make or mar happiness.

That thing is marriage.

The great majority of people find mates. Once mated, their future happiness and to some extent their health and prosperity depend upon the success of their partnership.

You may get happiness from many things while you are single, but once you are married you must get happiness from and with your mate or you will have none at all.

If your marriage is a happy one, neither poverty nor hardship can deprive you of happiness; if you are unhappily married, neither wealth nor fame can make you happy.

If that is true, and it is man's nature and destiny to mate, and his hope of happiness depends upon the success of his mating, by what means can he discover the mate who will insure his happiness?

There is only one way. He must wait for love.

In this scientific and analytical age, wise in its own conceit, love is scorned by those who have no experience of it; but human nature has not changed, and now as always the success and happiness of marriage depend upon the gentle passion that blinds a man and woman to one another's defects.

Without love, the intimacy and the restrictions imposed by marriage become intolerable.

Those who marry without love, thinking it unnecessary or hoping it will develop, will end their venture in a divorce court or live together in resentful discontent as certainly as two and two make four.

No two human beings, denied the magic of love, can live together year after year without insufferable boredom.

Doubt the fact of love if you will—ridicule it if you wish—but if you mate without it, your chance of happiness is gone.

It is the pearl of great price. You may find it late or never. But to marry without it is to invite hurts for which there is no balm.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Looking backward it appears
Summer equaled other years,
Save for fewer Coast Guard shots
Fired at our private yachts,
And a dropping off of women
Going in for channel swimmin';
Necking was a bit informal—
All in all the year was normal.

* * * *

Yachts were built to keep a cup,
And some motorboats blew up;
Everybody in the west
Tried an air endurance test;
For a show with scant apparel
Gendarmes pinched Producer Carroll;
Flagpole Kelly—more's the pity!
Sat atop Atlantic City;
Dr. Cook got out of jail;
Wanamaker caught a whale.

* * * *

Gandhi made salt at the shore,
China had the same old war;
Trouble rules on all the bourses,
Everywhere grew Tom Thumb courses,
Schmelling licked Jack Sharkey (maybe)
And the Lindberghs had a baby;
Brooklyn led the league, but tarried,
Smoot, the senator, got married;
Bobby Jones ruled on the links,
Lots of folks got poisoned drinks;
Hawks took off in Frisco—scat!—
Reached New York in nothing flat.

* * * *

Edison he pulled a test,
Gunmen ruled the Middle West,
Ford gave out an interview
Saying nothing that was new;
Hoover entertained his brother,
Aimee smacked her poor old mother;
Masefield, who once tended bar,
Was ordained a royal star.
Jimmy Walker on a yacht
Brought the Navy to the spot;
Sixteen hundred pretty nurses
Were all named Miss Universes;
In New Jersey Morrow (Dwight)
Won without much of a fight;
Calvin Coolidge, sombre, solemn,
Got a job to write a column.

* * * *

Carol took the throne; his mate
Gave to him the well known gate;
Gotham had a lot of scandal,
For the jury grand to handle.
And some people seemed to fear
Filling Mr. Tuttle's ear;
Mary Lewis figured she Wanted to be husband-free;
Gibbons (Floyd) upon the air
Made himself a millionaire;
All the farms got hot and dry
Mrs. Lindbergh learned to fly;
At the seaside folks got goofish
Living on steamed clams and bluefish;
Beach life was the same old stuff—
Get 'em young and treat 'em rough;
Gallant Fox despite Earl Sande
Proved a bust to James ("Pim") Dandy;
Old Asbury Park, you know,
Held its same old baby show.
And Chicago spent the season,
Shooting adults without reason;
On all highways motor buses
Brought forth epithets and cusses;
Hot dog as a choice confection
Were the tourists' chief selection;
All in all, though not a hummer,
It was quite a normal summer.

EXPERT YACHTING STUFF.

The Entermoe—beg pardon—the Weetaprise . . . no, that can't be right . . . the Enterprise has been chosen as the boat to defend the cup in the international yacht race.

The selection was made at the end of six raceless days during which weather conditions made further trial races impossible. This leads to the conclusion the Enterprise was selected because she parked better than the others.

Hollywood has produced a motion picture about the life of Lincoln and the amazing thing is that the producers have simply called it "Lincoln."

London is to hold an international cocktail shaking contest on September 15. No wonder it's satisfied to let the international yacht races and polo matches go to America.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"It's a Big Fire! C'mon!" And Motor Cars Tangle Themselves With Fire Engines.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: According to The Post's description, fire engines headed for the recent Federal Trade Commission fire were followed as they raced from all sections of the city to the blaze until streets within ten blocks of the scene were packed and jammed with automobiles.

At about the same time over on the Marlboro pike, travel was blocked for an hour or so by motorists who stopped to look at a fire in the woods near by.

All of which goes to show that men and women may still be truly described as boys and girls grown up, and it puts to shame those pessimist writers who like to insist that we moderns are becoming oversophisticated and blase.

Doubtless the thrill of the city's motorist fire fans at the late holocaust was similar to and not less exhilarating than that of the barefoot country boy chasing himself across lots to enjoy the fearsome spectacle when "the fire fiend seizes a barn."

At any rate this striking demonstration of the inherent urge of an urban population to "run with the hose" is a welcome sign that there is yet enough of the "hick" in all of us to keep the world safe for democracy. OLD BOY.

Why Did Jimmy Gerard Omit Senator Norris' Name From the 57 Varieties?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Among the 64 persons named by Mr. Gerard as the most potent in our national life I find no mention of the name of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, the admitted foremost political acrobat of his time.

As you know, he rode to the Senate, by grace of the Republicans of his State, on the back of the elephant, his party's emblem; then, no sooner there, than we see him somersault astride the "jackass," which he rode, to his own satisfaction and to the chagrin of his party, for six years.

Then, dismounting, he returns to Nebraska, and again leaps astride the elephant, and his chameleonic change of color at Washington was viewed with so much admiration by his constituents that they, dumfounded over his skill as an acrobat, unknowingly renominated him.

It is a strange thing to me, Mr. Editor, as it must be to you, that Mr. Gerard should overlook the name of this "chameleonlike wonder" in the arena of politics and not give it due recognition. JEHU P. APPLEGATE.

Practical Use of Aviation Not Advanced by Coste-Bellonte Flight.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The flight of the Question Mark from Paris to New York, like the transatlantic flight of the Spirit of St. Louis, served to focus attention upon the spectacular possibilities of the airplane, but it may be doubted that it served any useful purpose. The Question Mark was loaded far above the safety point, and yet it carried no pay cargo. The flight indicated that some day it may be possible to build planes capable of spanning the oceans with a pay load, but it proved beyond dispute that the advent of that day is distant. Although the flight proved the daring and ability of Coste and Bellonte, it had far less meaning so far as the future of aviation is concerned than any of several developments of the past year mentioned by Col. Lindbergh in a recent interview.

Every phase of aviation, said Col. Lindbergh, including the operating and managing of airlines, has improved within the last year. Aircraft design has progressed. Speed and safety have advanced. Airmail poundage is increasing constantly. Passenger traffic this summer has been greater than ever before. Private planes are being made easier to fly. Radio has made possible more accurate navigation and thereby operation with increased safety. Increased speed and safety, said Col. Lindbergh, are indicative of the time when it will be possible to transport mail, and later passengers, from one coast of the United States to the other overnight.

Transoceanic flights serve their purpose. They lift humankind out of its rut, centering attention for the moment on adventure and achievement, creating new heroes and proving that the spirit has not been crushed beneath materialism. But they do not advance the interests of aeronautics. W. A. D.

"The President Is Sincere, Intelligent, Able and Entirely Non-Partisan."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your current editorial, "Drought Politics," came to my attention on my arrival in Washington this morning. Its candor and unequivocal phraseology as to the unethical methods of the Democratic national committee, in the attempt of that committee to discredit the administration, is very refreshing.

One can not but question the essential patriotism of any American who today permits his partisan political bias to exercise a destructive force in this difficult situation, in which not alone the United States but practically the whole world is involved.

It is exceedingly fortunate that the Nation has a President who is not backward in exercising constructive leadership, within the scope of his office, to neutralize the force of the economic depression.

The partisan opponents of the administration show their utter contempt for the common welfare, interest and right, by their ulterior motives and misrepresentation as to the facts that are basic in the constructive policy of President Hoover. The American people, however, know that the President is sincere, intelligent, able and entirely nonpartisan in dealing with their human problems, and that he can be depended upon to safeguard their essential interest. Thanks for your editorial.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Mrs. Andrews Defies Rules, Writer Says

By JEAN ELIOT.

VISITING in Philadelphia recently, Mrs. Minnigerode Andrews came into contact with Miss Sarah D. Lowrie, well known as a writer for a Philadelphia newspaper and a woman who has long had intimate knowledge of the social life of the Quaker City. The stimulating encounter led Miss Lowry to comment in print upon how strongly, occasionally, the traits and aspects of persons suggest an environment quite opposite to that from which they have sprung, using Mrs. Andrews to point her moral.

She writes: "This amusing, versatile and immensely energetic character, Marietta Andrews, author of 'The Biography of a Poor Relation,' 'Scraps of Paper,' 'From My Studio Window,' etc., should by all signs and portents be as Southern and traditional as any of her Virginian ancestors, in her point of view of war, family connections, North and South," etc. But, the commentator continues, she has even managed to write about Washington—in "The George Washington Country," ready for publication in the fall in timely preparedness for the Washington bicentennial celebration—"without making him seem so wholly Virginian as most Virginians would make him."

"A varied life with sharp contrasts and a natural dramatic aptitude for seeing a combination where most people would only recognize unrelated events, have given this particular Washingtonian more dash and informality and spontaneity than the political-diplomatic conventionalized atmosphere of that Capitalized society is likely to engender. There is something vigorously pioneer about Marietta Andrews. She might have come from somewhere Far West of the Rockies or south of the desert instead of being blood kin to the Randolphs and the Carters and all of that mysterious cousinship of Virginia that has counties for postoffices and memories, like fine needle points, for recreations."

She winds up with "No, Mrs. Andrews, of Washington, defies rules. Unless being an exception proves them."

All of which seems an interesting bit of character analysis to those of us who know Mrs. Andrews as one from whom to expect the unexpected, whose wisdom is spiced with wit and whose abounding energy has survived ill health and many troubles. Mrs. Andrews has closed the studio, from whose window she surveyed Washington for a score of years, with most of its important personages stopping in occasionally to visit her; and is living at Vauxcleuse, on Seminary Hill near Alexandria, with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eliphalet F. Andrews, and their little girls to provide stimulating company.

Miss Braganza's Marriage Surprise to Society.

The marriage of Miss Nadedja de Braganza, daughter of the Princess Miguel de Braganza, the former Miss Anita Stewart, of New York, and the late Prince de Braganza, pretender to the throne of Portugal, was announced yesterday by her mother, who is passing the summer at her home in Newport. Miss de Braganza was married to Mr. Vadim Dorozynski, of Paris, son of a former Russian navy officer, in Capri, on August 16.

The bride is the granddaughter of the late William Rhinelander Stewart, lawyer and philanthropist, and a member of one of the oldest New York families, tracing their descent from Scotch and Huguenot families which settled in this city shortly after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, in the early seventeenth century.

Her father, Prince de Braganza, who was also the Duke of Vizcu, died in New York in 1923. He married Miss Stewart in 1909 and abandoned his claim to the throne of Portugal. He was a direct descendant of King Miguel, who in 1834 was dethroned and banished from Portugal, and was the son of Dom Miguel, legitimate claimant to the throne, and Elizabeth, Princess of Thurn and Taxis.

The announcement of the marriage came as a surprise. Miss de Braganza sailed for Europe early in the summer. She made her debut at Newport at a brilliant ball given by her mother and her uncle, Mr. William Rhinelander Stewart, of New York.

Mr. Percy Lee Atherton, of the Department of Music, Congressional Library, is at the Mountain View Hotel in the White Mountains for a holiday.

Miss Sherman Is Engaged to New Yorker

Utica Girl Granddaughter of Vice President Under Taft.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Marjorie Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherrill Sherman, of Utica, N. Y., to Mr. William J. Waldron is of exceptional interest to the older generation in Washington, as Miss Sherman is a granddaughter of the late James Schoolcraft Sherman, former Vice President of the United States. In the Taft administration the home of Vice President and Mrs. Sherman was the scene of much hospitality and Mr. Sherman, affectionately known as "Sunny Jim," is held in pleasant memory.

Mr. Waldron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Waldron, of Yonkers. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1924 and is a member of the Delta Tau fraternity. At present he is in business in New York City.

Miss Sherman is a member of the Junior League. Her father and her uncle, Mr. Thomas S. Sherman, are distinguished amateur golfers. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Arthur Benton Carle, of Jackson Heights, Queens, New York, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Natalie Carle, to Ensign John Clement Alderman, U. S. N., son of Mr. L. R. Alderman, of Washington. Ensign Alderman was graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1928.

The wedding will take place on October 11 at the residence of Miss Carle's aunt, Mrs. Nathaniel Allen Carle, at Newark, N. J.

Miss Oneda Brown Bride of Dr. Cole.

A charmingly arranged wedding took place at 5 o'clock last evening when Miss Oneda Maybelle Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther H. Brown, of Washington, became the bride of Dr. Hazen Eugene Cole. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. John Weldley in the Church of the Reformation. Miss Brown had as maid of honor Miss Elsie Keyes. Miss Elizabeth Miller, Miss Elizabeth Barr, Miss Nola Sanborn and Mrs. Herbert Dorin were bridesmaids.

Mr. Eugene Dwyer acted as best man for Dr. Cole and Mr. Elwood Vermillion, Mr. Laurence Vermillion, Mr. Herbert Dornin and Mr. David McCoy served as ushers.

The bride, gowned in ivory satin made along princess lines and wearing a tulle veile bound with orange blossoms, was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lillies of the valley. Her maid of honor wore orchid pointe d'esprit with matching accessories, and carried sunburst roses. The bridesmaids were garbed in pink, blue, yellow and green chiffon in pastel tints with accessories to match, and carried rainbow showers with tulle bows matching their gowns. Mrs. Brown was attired in orchid chiffon with a large picture hat to match.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Joseph Philipps, sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Mr. Burrus Williams, organist, who is a cousin of Dr. Cole.

Immediately after the service the guests were entertained at a wedding dinner at the Dodge Hotel, the out-of-town guests being Mrs. A. Wiley Kluttz, of Salisbury, N. C., grandmother of the bride; Mrs. U. Ray Miller, also of Salisbury, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Rosa Jeffcoat, of Boone, N. C.

"POLITICS— Prevents Enforcement of PROHIBITION—"

Says!

Major MAURICE CAMPBELL

Former Prohibition Administrator of New York

Major Campbell is a total abstainer and still a prohibitionist at heart. But he is convinced that the dry law can never be enforced because "the politicians got hold of prohibition 'enforcement' right at the beginning and made it a system for bartering for campaign contributions with bootleg concessions." . . . Major Campbell's revelations are illustrated with photostats of documents involving high officials, and with pictures of principals.

MISS MYSTERIOUS

By LARRY LAWRENCE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A student at the State university, affectionately called Babe by her sorority sisters and campus friends, is cruelly shocked by reading a newspaper story of the suicide of her guardian, Clement Forsaith. Shortly after reading the news she receives a letter from Portland, Oreg., from the man stating that he has lost all her money in the stock market and for this reason is going to take his own life. But the letter held an even greater shock. It told her that she had been fooled all her life about her parentage and ends by saying that her real name is not Thelma Townley, as she always thought. He predicts that she will never learn her real identity. Babe confides in Violet Rimmel. Reuben Morgan, a young man from the West Coast, calls on Babe, says he knows of her misfortune and asks her to marry him as a way out of her difficulties. She suspects that he is not on the square. A telegram warns her against Morgan. At a dance that same night Peter Jones, Milwaukee senior, proposes and tells Babe that he fears two men are following her. She laughs at the warning but later that night is kidnaped. A wild ride follows in which Pete catches up to them and rescues Babe. With the men tied, lying in the road Pete starts to drive the kidnaper's car out of the road when headlights are seen approaching. Babe does not want to answer questions about the experience, as yet, hoping that something can be learned from the kidnapers.

CHAPTER V.

"Hurry, Pete, hurry," Babe called. He ran the car off the concrete and raced back. "Help get 'em in the ditch here," Pete panted as he began rolling the heavier Gus off the road. As Babe was shoving the smaller man out of sight she hissed: "Keep your mouth shut or we'll hand you over to the police." His only answer was a sullen growl, but Babe knew he would not shout. In a moment the men were out of the way and Pete and Babe had climbed into the roadster. "We'll drive slowly until the car passes," Pete suggested and Babe nodded her approval of the plan.

The car came whizzing by. They gave little sighs of relief. Pete turned the car and drove back to the spot where the prisoners were hidden.

"Can't trust those ropes and straps for long," Pete remarked, and jumping out he found both men struggling like trapped animals to escape.

"Take it easy or I'll give you birds a couple of taps with this jolly old persuader." He flourished the monkey wrench with which he had bluffed Gus. Tightening the cords, he returned to the car.

"Well, Babe, what's the next move?"

"I ought to thank you for saving me, Pete, but I don't know how."

"I don't want any thanks, Babe." He paused, then thinking an explanation in order, went on:

"I couldn't go to bed feeling like I did. I was so jumpy for fear something might happen to you that I simply had to do something. So I thought I would drive around your house. I figured I might spot those men hanging around. As I drove up I thought I heard a scream, but then I decided my nerves were a little jumpy and I was hearing things. Say, did you call?"

"Yes, I tried to call your name."

"Well, I had noticed that car was picking up pretty fast and after driving around the block once something told me to follow. As it gained speed I made up my mind that they had you. Sounds a little goofy, but I was following a hunch. Babe, do you believe your heart tells you things?"

"Pete, I'm not so sure that it doesn't." She hesitated, then blurted out: "My heart told me it was you." Then she hastened to add: "But let's not talk this way any more. I'm so tired I would fall in your arms and want to stay there and you know, Pete, that wouldn't be fair. Let's decide on something to do with these men. I want to talk to them alone."

"Not alone, honey," Pete protested. "What can we do? Where can we take them?" Babe demanded.

A Drive to Milwaukee.

"I've got it, Babe. Just the place. We can drive to dad's country place north of Milwaukee, lock them up, and take our time figuring out what to do."

"You always come to the rescue," Babe praised. "Pete, you seem to be the ever-present hero. Just like a novel. Let's get started."

"I want to get their car out of sight first." Pete jumped out and drove the kidnapers' automobile up a side road and then turning into a thicket hid it fairly well. Coming back on the double he said, "It may be several days before that can is seen again. Now I'll load the beef in the hack and we'll get started." Things were turning out beautifully as far as he was concerned. It would give him hours alone with Babe and there was nothing he desired more.

The smaller man was easy. Pete picked him up like a bag of meal and dumped him in the rumble seat. Gus was harder to carry, but he managed it and hoisted him to the seat beside his companion. Again he tightened the bindings and gave some crisp warning.

"If you birds ride quietly you may get out of this jam," he said. "One move to escape, or one yell out of you and I'll cave your skulls in plenty."

Pete had driven for almost a half hour without saying anything to Babe. He was burning with curiosity about the whole affair, but knew the strain Babe had been under and refrained from questioning her. He kept asking himself, however, why these men had made the attempt to kidnap her. Babe was too tired to talk and at last he felt her head pressing against his arm. She was asleep. He slowed down, shifted her gently to a more comfortable position and then opened the throttle wide. Now and then he slowed up to look back and inspect his prisoners. They seemed to be making the best of their predicament. Probably the wallops they had received had softened 'em up a bit, he mused as he raced on toward Milwaukee.

For an hour and 40 minutes he wheeled along and Babe slept. As he came to the outskirts of Milwaukee Pete awakened her.

"Better keep your eyes open, now, honey," he said. "We may have to do some sharp moving or talking."

"I must send a telegram, too," she said.

"Shall we chance it down Wisconsin avenue?" he asked.

"I guess so."

A Message to Violet.

"Well, I don't imagine those gentlemen in the back seat are anxious to talk to any coppers. I suppose we'll be safe." The street was almost deserted at that early hour in the morning.

When they came to the telegraph office Babe hopped out and sent a message to Violet, saying she was safe and might not be back for several days. She ended the message, "See Morgan at 11 and tell him I was called out of town."

No one noticed the men in the back sea and Pete and Babe drove rapidly through Milwaukee and out to the resort. "Hungry, honey?" he asked.

"Starved."

"The pantry will be stocked, unless some of those summer home bandits and bums have broken in. They did last year, but we've got the place double locked and barred now. Lucky I've got a set of keys with me."

The home was set back from the lake and surrounded by trees. All was dark as they drove up the winding path. Pete drove into the garage and taking his flashlight from a car pocket ran to open a door. Then he dragged the prisoners into the house and locked them in separate rooms.

In another half hour he had canned chicken and mushrooms on the stove, wafers in the oven crisping and Babe had a table for two set in the kitchen.

"Gee, this is homelike," he said. "I wish you would sign up for a life job, seeing to it that I get my regular groceries."

"But, Pete, you did all the seeing in this case."

"Oh, we won't argue about that. Maybe I should have said, 'I hope you'll let me provide your vitamins from now on.'" Babe seemed suddenly more serious than she had been while setting the table. A cloud passed over her face. "Pete, I'm afraid I can never marry you. I'm afraid I can never marry any one, never."

"Now, don't talk like that," Pete barked, but it was a gentle bark. "You are the sweetest girl in the cockeyed world but you certainly do say nutty things—at times. Why, one would think you had a terrible past, and committed some crime, or something, to hear you."

Prisoners Demand Attention.

"You are closer than you think, Pete! I may as well tell you. Yes, I owe it to you to be absolutely honest. I had taken an oath to myself not to go blabbing my story, not to go about letting the world know of my misfortunes, but I owe it to you, Pete. I'll tell you."

They had almost forgotten the prisoners as they talked, but a loud thumping on a door made them both jump to their feet.

"I'll go," Pete said, as he started for the room in which Gus was locked. Babe followed close at his heels. Without opening the door, Pete called, "Pipe down, in there, or I'll quiet you."

"Are you going to let a guy die of thirst?" Gus called. "My tongue's hanging out. Slip a guy a little something, can't you?"

"Might as well give him a drink of water," Babe said, and Pete nodded. She went to get the water. Pete unlocked the door and stepped in. There was a thud as Gus brought a chair down on Pete's head. Pete fell to the floor, stunned, and Gus swung the door back and grabbed Babe by the arm.

"You kids think you can run this show, do you?"

Gus leered at her. "I've got a notion to make you pay for that," he said, showing his wrists, chafed by the rope.

"You little devil, you. But you would make a nice armful." Jerking her inside the room, he hurled her at the bed. Standing there, gloating, he seemed to have forgotten Pete. Perhaps he thought the one blow on the head had put him out completely.

"You bungling brats," he said, and laughed. 'But you might as well be nice now. I've got the ace and I'll play it. Give us a smile." He moved a little closer. Pete slowly doubled himself up on the floor, crouching like a panther ready to spring. Gus moved again, unmindful of the menace. Then Pete hurled himself, and caught the heavy man just above the short ribs. There was one howl of pain as he went down, but he was on his feet again like a cat. He aimed a blow at Pete, but it missed, and Pete closed with him.

Gus had the strength of a giant, but Pete had the stamina of the trained athlete. Blow after blow was struck. There was nothing scientific. Gus broke away and rushed in. Pete dodged and rushed. Gus aimed for the chin, but Pete started hammering in the wind. For five minutes they fought, and Babe lay as paralyzed on the bed. Gus swung a roundhouse wallop at the chin. It was low, but caught Pete on the shoulder, throwing him off balance. Gus stepped in to finish him, but Pete went under the blow, dropping to his knees. Then he launched at him as in a tackle and Gus sprawled to the floor. They came to grips there. With a desperate effort Pete heaved his grunting enemy over and landed a smash to the jaw. Gus' head wobbled.

A Gangster at Liberty.

"Get the ropes," Pete called. This brought Babe to her feet. She found the rope that Gus had managed to escape and again they tied him.

"This is the last chance you get, big boy," he said as the job was finished. "Babe, run get the monkey wrench." When she returned with the instrument Pete said, "Stand guard over this fiend. If he so much as moves crack him on the head. I'm going to have a look at the other prisoner." Gus, his face swollen, one eye almost shut, gave a short, harsh sound that resembled a laugh.

In a moment they realized why he had made that sound.

"He's gone," Pete called. "Gone." He came back to the wrecked room and looked at Babe.

"I was a fool," he said. "I should have watched these criminals like you guard murderers. We'll have to get out of here I guess, Babe. He'll probably be back with a couple of gunmen. If he knows anything about this district he could find some of the Chicago mob not far away."

Gus was obviously enjoying the situation.

"What do you know about it?" Pete barked at him, but the figure on the floor only moved a shoulder in a shrug.

"Guess we had better take this specimen to a cell, somewhere and then get to a place of safety ourselves. You can't stand much more in one night."

Babe was so exhausted by the excitement of the last hour that she could only shake her head and protest weakly. "Not police station, yet."

"There's no time to argue, honey," Pete said. "Stand watch. Stick it out a little longer now. I'll go start the car and drive up to the front. It'll be easier to load him in."

In a few minutes he returned looking sheepish. "I should have guessed. The car's gone, too. Of course, he would take it."

IT has been estimated that the radio chains spend about $6,000 a week in just listening to would-be air talent, according to Variety. There are said to be so many applicants for radio jobs that only 10 per cent are actually heard and even smaller numbers are hired.

A plan to relieve the clogged audition situation in radio is suggested by an advertising agency interested in radio broadcasting. It is to establish a certification school in New York, where air applicants can secure a radio audition and be certified for work with stations. Under the certification idea the artists will pay an audition cost.

One audition man said he believed there were 100,000 sopranos alone looking for radio jobs.

THE voice of Pope Pius XI may be relayed from the Vatican in Rome in an address intended for the national eucharistic congress to be held in Omaha, beginning September 23. Committees in charge of the preparations said they were making plans to have the Pope's voice brought across the Atlantic by radio telephone and amplified in the Omaha meeting place by loud speakers.

The famous "Slumber Hour," directed by Ludwig Laurier, will be commercialized, beginning next Sunday evening, over the WJZ network. Station WLW will join this chain on September 28.

This broadcast will be in addition to the regular week-night periods.

A series of thirteen concerts by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will start next Monday evening over the CBS system (WMAL, 8 p. m.). The concerts will be conducted by Henri Vergrugghen.

HELEN MORGAN, star of "Show Boat" and "Sweet Adeline," will be guest artist in a program over WJZ tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock.

Arcadie Birkenholz, virtuoso for the NBC, recently had a heart-stopping experience involving his $5,000 Gagliano violin. He was pacing about one of the New York studios, waiting to go on the air, while his valuable instrument reposed on the top of the grand piano. One of the page boys assigned to studio duty was instructed by the control engineer to prop open the top of the piano, which he hastened to do without noticing the violin.

The Gagliano had slid all the way down the slope, but Birkenholz managed to catch it, with its bow, just before it struck the floor.

INDOOR AND OUTDOOR GARDENS

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me whether Iceland poppies die down or if they bloom continuously. I planted some last fall which bloomed most beautifully until the middle of June. Now they are rather dead looking. Is this natural? L. B. H.

Iceland poppies bloom all through the summer if the flowers are kept well picked. This applies to single or double-flowered plants. The Iceland poppies are very easily established, for they self-sow very readily. If the flowers are cut every day, they produce more and more blooms. They are extremely hardy and will grow in any soil.

Please tell me the name of the flower I am inclosing. MRS. F. M. L.

Bergamot, a hardy perennial commonly known as bee balm or Oswego tea.

Please tell me the name of the tree of which I am inclosing a leaf and flower. MRS. J. B.

Paris, September 3.

I THINK there is nothing as consistently elegant as black velvet. Since its origin as a cloth to be worn only by royalty and later permitted to certain aristocrats, it has ever held its place as the most luxurious and beautiful of fabrics.

Know how velvet is woven? Complicated is no word for it. Two cloths are woven first. "backs" of two pieces of velvet. Then millions of fine threads are woven back and forth between these two backs, which are adjusted to a hair's breadth of precision. When this is done, the two pieces of what are now velvet are cut apart with a single swoop of a razor-edged knife, and there is velvet. The tiniest flaw in any one of these calculations or manipulations spoils the entire piece, too.

And in a gathering of the loveliest fabrics and gowns known to mankind, regardless of the mode of the moment, whether it be for glittering gold cloth or glittering solidly beaded cloths, or fragile lace or chiffon, the single color velvet dress stands out and has no need to even ask for first place. Isn't that true?

How glad I am to be able to tell you that velvet, and especially the queen of colors, black, will be very smart for evening gowns and wraps this winter. Chiffon velvet for the gowns, coat velvet, usually, for the coats.

Coin de Couleur.

Every one seems to want to know about rose for fall and winter, what with this color having been so very popular this late summer. Well, you can take my word for it that you will see a lot of this flattering color on smart women. Of course, you will hardly see it on the street in the rain, but by a lot I mean you will see it in chic touches at the neck, in jewelry, in the form of a flower, or in complete ensembles for evening wear.

Now, wouldn't it be smart to make a fur set for that fall suit of yours? But I mean a real set, a snappy and chic one, say a beret just like those Basque ones that have been so popular, but made of broad tail or caracul, with cuffs to match on your gloves. Or the beret and a smart purse of the fur, with a silver top. Or, guess? An ermine belt with a diamond buckle, and a necklace of brilliants with little ermine tails as pendants. This set is delightful on a black afternoon dress, or an evening dress. Well, Dare tells you how to make all these and some more, in this week's illustrated leaflet for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send that envelope in a letter addressed to Dare, The Washington Post, you know.

• • • •

You can, too, iron that mussed seat part of your velvet dress. Only have some one help you by holding the iron firmly upside down, not too hot an iron, you know. Then you yourself pass the velvet over it, back and forth, until the seam arises and steams out the wrinkles. Stubborn ones can be brushed with a very soft brush while the material is over the iron. A third person would have to wield the brush. Be careful not to let the velvet rest long in one spot.

• • • •

And a silver pendant and bracelet, modernistic, did I sketch for you today.

• • • •

Then there is the Dare weekly fashion letter that appears every week in The Sunday Washington Post. You should read it carefully.

Goofus Suggestion No. 4376-A

To make a Goofus Banjo, first
You catch a Goofus Horseshoe crab
And into the part which is marked "A"
Four ordinary keys you jab.
Next stretch from them to his mouth marked "B"
Four catgut strings from a Goofus Cat—
You'll hardly need a fret I think,
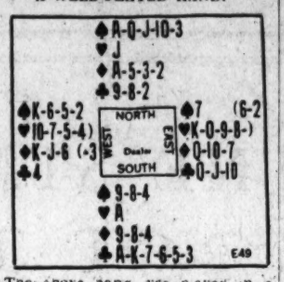
The Crab might be harassed by that.
Now tell a ghost tale to your Crab
And listen as he starts to shiver;
Delightful tunes he'll plunk for you
Including such as "Old Man River!"

WORK ON BRIDGE

A WELL-PLAYED HAND.



The above hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge. South bid one Club, North one Spade, East two Hearts, South two Spades, West three Hearts, and North obtained the contract at three Spades. Had East and West bid the Hearts further to save game they would have been able to make only three-odd, losing one trick in each suit; but it is often better to take a loss than to give up the game. North and South, however, would have bid four Spades, possibly five.

At Contract, South would bid one or two Clubs, depending upon the system he used; and over that North would bid two or three Spades, a jump-shift in either case, showing a desire to play Spades if that suited South, and a command for South to continue the bidding. East would not have strength to bid more than two Hearts, not knowing whether West could support him, and therefore the Heart bid of the enemy would be shut out. South would bid four Spades, and the bidding probably would end there, it being one of the hands with which a slam could be made, but not safely bid.

In the Auction play with North the Declarer and Spades the trump, East led the King of Hearts, which South won, and immediately led Spades. South's Spades being in sequence with North's, the finesse was effectively taken by leading the Nine and playing the Trey. On the second round a small Spade was led by South and won by North with the Ten. South was put in the lead with a Club to lead Spades again, and finally North's Ace drew West's King. Next a Club was led; East played the Jack and, to insure the small slam, was allowed to take that trick. It was the only one that East and West could capture. Whether East led a Heart or a Diamond, North would win and lead his last Club, which South would take, and South, being left with three good Clubs, North would obtain three Diamond discards, so a small slam was assured.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from noon to 1:30 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m., and from 4:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

This date will not be without its opportunities and benefits, but the influences will not be conducive to a pleasant frame of mind. Domestic worries and conflict with those about you "Evil is wrought by want of thought as well as want of heart."

Children born on this September 4 will have impulsive natures, and they will be abrupt in speech. They will have splendid minds, and a great love of beauty, as expressed through nature, music or literature. They will have expansive feelings and emotions.

You have a reserved, modest nature, and the world must learn by itself and from others of the things you are or can do. You are dubbed as being cold, haughty, proud and snobbish by those who do not understand that your seeming aloofness is an adopted trait for the purpose of covering up your inferiority complex. You are eager to be friends with the whole world, but you do not know how. You are not critical toward others; you are only critical toward self. You sing praises in your heart for nearly every one.

You are a good listener, and this is a gift above price, for by this gift you can win affection and admiration, as well as a reputation for intelligence and understanding. You know how to listen with both your heart and mind. You are an easy victim for loquacious bores. Your friends fill your ears, trouble your heart with their sorrows.

If you be a woman, you possess many of the Victorian graces and virtues. You set the man of your heart on a pedestal, and you treat him like a hero. You will be satisfied with unadulterated home life, and you will be happy if you have a family for whom you can work, worry and fuss. There is a danger that you will narrow down your interests too much, or that your family will grow away from you.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce.)

In the great many households, spaces behind and around the appliances are used for the storage of brooms, mops, buckets, cloths and such household necessities. This should not be done, since it is extremely easy for these articles to become raised to a dangerous temperature. A great step forward will be gained if the householder remembers that a gas appliance is not like a coal stove, for although when not in use the appliance is practically cold, yet on lighting it quickly attains a temperature which will set fire to combustible materials in contact with certain parts of it. Of course, care should be taken to keep rubbish, paper, or dirt from collecting around or under an appliance. This is not only insanitary but also dangerous as a cause of fire.

Appliances should be kept clean. Not only does this help to increase the efficiency, but also it helps to render them safer. If the burners are allowed to become plugged with grease or dust or if the mixing shutter or chamber is allowed to become clogged with dust, poor combustion will follow and a yellow flame depositing soot and carbon, for example, on the cooking utensils will result. All appliances should be regularly cleaned in a careful manner, and if out of adjustment the householder should call upon the gas company to readjust them unless he can himself do a thoroughly satisfactory job.

LATE HOUR REACTION SEES STOCKS SLUMP

SALES VOLUME SMALL

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—The stock market again served notice today that it was not to be hurried into an advance.

Prices moved inconclusively until the last half hour when a reacton set in that carried through to the close, bringing losses of 1 to 6 points in a wide assortment of shares. Trading, however, was in small volume.

The break appeared to be technical, for the market had been rising without serious interruption for nearly three weeks and therefore entitled to a corrective move in the other direction. As measured by the average of 90 issues, stocks lost 1.7 ponts.

Despite a rather long list of dividend reductions headed by Kennecott's second cut of the year, the day's news was reasonably favorable. Iron Age reported improvement in steel ingot production for the third successive week and the weekly car loading statistics revealed a gain over the previous week. One chain store system announced an increase in August sales. Petroleum production again declined.

The bond market resumed its advance, led by the rails whose average price attained a new high for the year. Although the demand for secondary issues has not yet become pronounced, there are signs that funds are beginning to flow into these securities, a move that normally would represent the passing of another milestone on the road to financial reconstruction.

Rail Prices Change Little.

Stocks groped hesitantly for a footing during most of the day and the market's favorites generally held to changes of about a point until the late selling, which started in the farm implement, amusement and utility groups, spreading eventually to the specialties and industrials. Rails were little affected by the day's movements.

The heavy undertone of the earlier hours was replaced by a mild bullish demonstration early in the afternoon Bethlehem Steel and United Aircraft, rallying 3 and 2 points, respectively, were prominent in this advance which eliminated the moderate losses of the morning. Bethlehem held two-thirds of its gain, but United Aircraft retained only a fraction at the close.

One of the significant statements in the Iron Age Weekly Review was the assertion that although gains in ingot output had been slight, they had, nevertheless, encouraged independent sheet makers to make "the first determined price stand in more than a year." Also of interest was the report that new inquiries for fabricated steel were the largest since early June.

Speculative commodities were irregular. Wheat closed ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent lower under the influence of bearish Government weather reports and a large movement of Canadian grain. Corn sagged fractionally, but cotton advanced 50 to 75 cents a bale in this market.

Commodity Prices Data.

Bradstreet's monthly report on commodity prices offered some encouragement. The publication said that its index declined only two-tenths of 1 per cent during August, while six groups of staples advanced, six droppped and one was unchanged. The inference was, said the summary, that prices appeared to have reached a point of stability.

The firming of money rates, which had been expected yesterday developed today. Call loans advanced to 2½ per cent after renewing at 2, reflecting bank withdrawals of $35,000,000 and the customary stringency that attends monthly settlements, particularly in September when the demands of the agricultural districts on the money markets begin to be felt. There was no change in the rates for other forms of credit.

Only a few stocks lost as much as 4, 5 or 6 points. These included such volatile shares as Case, Diamond Match, American Tobacco B, Eastman Kodak, Foster-Wheeler and Columbian Carbon. There were declines of 2 to more than 3 in Johns-Manville, duPont, Sears-Roebuck, Westinghouse Electric, Auburn Auto and Standard Gas & Electric, and of about 2 in U. S. Steel, Vanadium Radio, Loew's and New York Central, as well as some of the utilities. General Electric, American Telephone and General Motors lost a point or more.

Foreign exchanges were mixed. Continental currencies showed heaviness, but several of the Latin-Americans showed marked improvement.

Collateral Loans Drop On New York Exchange

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Collateral loans to members of the New York Stock Exchange decreased $90,849,228 during August to a total of $3,598,633,069. August 29, the New York Stock Exchange reported today.

On August 30 last year the loans totaled $7,881,619,426.

RAILS' RISE MARKS FIRM BOND PRICES

LATIN AMERICANS GAIN

New York, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—The market acquired renewed vigor today, especially in the rail group whose average price moved to a new high on steady accumulation of the highest grade issues. Other sections were quiet but firm.

A feature of the session, which saw a volume of business about equal to yesterday's, was a stiffening of prices in several parts of the Latin American group, based apparently on the receipt of better news regarding the political situations in those republics.

Argentine listings advanced a point, while Buenos Aires 6s rose nearly 3. Bonds of Chile and Brazil were mostly firm, but Colombians sagged on small offerings. Sao Paulo State 7s of 1956 sank 9½ points to a new low while the 8s improved 4. Rio Grande Do Sul 8s advanced 1. Mexican obligations continued to move up, although buying was only moderate.

Dozen Rails at New Highs.

A dozen rails touched new highs for the year. There was a tendency, especially in the later dealings, to extend the demand to the secondary issues of this group, but most of the business was done in the better liens. Bonds surpassing their previous 1930 peaks included Central Pacific first 4s, Chicago & North Western 6½s, Big Four 4½s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5½s, New York Central 4½s, Nickel Plate 4s, and Peoria & Eastern first 4s. Missouri Pacific were firm.

On the whole, industrials and specialties fared better than the utilities. Chile Copper 5s, General Steel Castings 5½s, Fisk Rubber 8s, International Match 5s, Liggett & Myers 7s, Lorillard 5½s, National Dairy 5½s, Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s and United Drug 5s were leaders in the improvement. Some of the gains exceeded a point. The inactive Marion Steam Shovel 6s broke 13 points.

The firmer utilities included American Telephone 5s of 1965, Hudson Gas 5s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s and Western Union 5s. Small offerings of Utilities Power & Light 5½s, Northern States Power 6s and Southern Colorado Power 6s brought nominal declines.

Warner Brothers Loses.

Convertibles were inactive and there was small inquiry for bonds with stock warrants, which are attracting little attention in these days of unsettled share prices. Warner Brothers Picture 6s and Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron 6s lost ¾.

The day's chief new offering, a $40,000,000 issue of Portland General Electric 30-year 4½s, priced at 93¾, was oversubscribed. Few new issues of importance are scheduled for immediate flotation, since this is the dull season for such operations.

United States Governments were particularly dull, moving irregularly higher. In the case of the Treasuries, only one issue showed a turnover of more than $1,000, principal amount.

One of the new issues to be offered soon is a $3,000,000 first mortgage 30-year 4½ per cent loan for the Kansas City Power & Light Co.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1930. 13

YANKEES HAMMER JONES TO DEFEAT NATS, 10-7

Westbrook Pegler Says

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Every now and again some skeptic pities me on account of my credulity in the matter, but, much as I would like to know, I never have been able to decide whether Paavo Nurmi was the greatest deceiver in amateur athletics or a great patriot to his little fatherland, Finland. He came to this country in the second or third class accommodations of a mediocre ship in the winter of 1924-25.

He broke all the world records for conventional and unconventional distances from 1 mile to 3 miles. He turned down an offer of $40,000 from the late Tex Rickard, and he finally returned to Finland, traveling first class this time, but not in luxury, the most mysterious character in all sport.

Nurmi was a man that nobody knew, but whether he was studiously haughty and really wished to snub the press, the public, and his sporting adversaries or merely was so arranged that publicity and the amenities did not exist for him one could only guess. The newspapers of every big city in the United States put reporters on him, but none of them spoke Finnish, and when they went after him with interpreters he spoke only in taciturn grunts, which the interpreters would elaborate into long and obviously imaginative discourses.

Created Own Publicity Over Here.

There was a moderate tootle of ballyhoo, by no means amounting to a blast, at the time he sailed for the United States, but it did not take him long to create his own publicity. Soon after he landed in the United States he ran in New York one night, in Chicago the next night, and in New York again the third night, and broke the world record for the distance involved each time.

His trainer and public sponsor was Hugo Quist, a sly man, who always seemed to imply that he could a tale unfold, and who afterward took up with Charlie Pyle to massage and coach some of Charlie's grotesquely whiskered and bedraggled buntoneers on their serio-comic chase across the continent. One night, long after Paavo had returned to Finland, I asked Mr. Quist whether he was now willing to say as to Paavo's amateurism, but although the circumstances were such as to loosen the tongue and relax the vigilance of one guarding a secret he only looked at the ceiling a while, and then, with a quizzical smile, replied: "Anyway, he could run."

$40,000 Fails to Draw Answer.

This seemed to imply something, and yet, when Paavo had only begun to run and the publicity still was growing, Tex Rickard stood in the foyer of the old Garden calculating the crowd gathered to see the great Nurmi, and said:

"Yes, I offered him $40,000, but I couldn't get an answer out of him."

If Paavo had been a professional amateur of the type familiar to lawn tennis would he have been content to go on deriving his pay from padded expense bills to a total of only a few thousands dollars and then turn down a competency? The alternative seemed to me to be that Paavo was a patriotic Finn, running for the glory of his country and determined to remain an amateur, so he could run for Finland again in the Olympic games.

I disrecall the distance of Paavo's first run in the United States, which was made in a meeting conducted by the Finnish-American Athletic Club of New York at the old Garden, but I distinctly recollect that after he had gone about a quarter of a mile he stepped up his gait as easily as though he merely had pressed a toe on the gas pedal of an automobile.

"Yes! Yes!" exclaimed Mr. Al Copland, himself a runner and coach of old prestige. "He's a runner. The greatest runner in the world. He will break a lot of records."

Enchanted by Easy Rhythm Of His Stride.

An exceedingly hard-boiled young woman from the papers was so enchanted by the easy rhythm of his stride, his mastery, which reduced the best in America to mediocrity, and his confident hauteur that she committed a really creditable job of blank verse about the twin columns of marble which were his legs, the quality of champions, and the right of the gods to despise the rabble.

He might have insisted upon a suite at a great hotel and carte blanche to entertain his friends as the professional amateurs have been known to do, but Paavo lived in the household of an obscure family of his countrymen in the Bronx. He might have sold testimonials for shoes, for contraptions to support the arches, toe plasters, socks, chewing gum, patent broth, athletic equipment, and even, as Red Grange did, although he never smoked, for cigarets. But his name never appeared on the billboards nor in the magazines in any commodity indorsements even though the payment could have been arranged so as to place a very difficult burden of proof upon the A. A. U.

Junior Golf Title Won by Bowen

Bennett Is Beaten in Play-Off of Tie by 14 Strokes.

Banning of D.C. Golfers From U.S. Amateur Is Criticized.

BY HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ROBERT BOWEN, the 20-year-old son of S. R. Bowen, vice president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., yesterday won the junior golf championship of the District in the playoff of the tie which marked the ending of the 36-hole medal play competition on the course of the Washington club last Tuesday. His opponent was Melville B. Bennett, the 18-year-old son of Maj. C. A. Bennett, U. S. A. Bowen's score was 40—42—82, while Bennett trailed far behind with 46—50—96.

On the day of the tournament Bowen had a card of 73—76—149, while Bennett scored 74—75—149, but the playing yesterday was in no way comparable with these figures. When the first three holes had been played, Bennett was one stroke in the lead, but on the fourth hole, after his second shot had been played into the trees, followed by a battle in the forest and eventually holing out in 9, his defeat was a foregone conclusion.

Bowen Leads by 6 Strokes At Turn.

At the end of the first nine Bowen had a lead of 6 strokes. This was increased to 9 when, on the tenth hole, Bennett took 7 after again becoming entangled in the trees. On the short eleventh hole, a par 3, Bennett expended 6 strokes, and although he gained a stroke on each of the twelfth, fourteenth and fifteenth holes, was 10 strokes behind on the seventeenth tee. On the last two holes Bennett was literally swamped, for ditch penalties on the seventeenth and eighteenth cost him 7 for each hole. The cards:

Out—
Bowen	4	5	5	5	4	5	5	5	2	—40
Bennett	5	3	5	9	6	4	5	5	4	—46
In—
Bowen	4	4	5	5	5	5	4	5	5	—42—82
Bennett	7	6	4	5	4	4	6	7	7	—50—96

At the conclusion of the round, Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, president of the District Golf Association, who had acted as scorer and referee, made a brief address presented Bowen with the silver trophy donated by Albert R. Mackenzie and the gold medal emblematic of the championship. Bennett received a silver medal.

U. S. G. A. Criticized by D. C. Golfers.

The action of the United States Golf Association in rejecting the applications of Miller B. Stevinson, Harry G. Pitt and John C. Shorey for eligibility to play in the approaching national amateur tournament, leaving the National Capital without a single representative in the event, has caused considerable criticism among local golfers.

Stevinson, who has been the District amateur golf champion for the past two consecutive years, has been ignored, although the Maryland State champion has been admitted. In addition to this Stevinson has recently played the Merion course, where the national amateur event is to be held, in three rounds of 72, 73 and 76, a series of scores which indicate that he would undoubtedly qualify.

While neither of three rejected local players have taken any steps in their own behalf, it was decided yesterday to make a formal protest to the national organization against its adverse action. Consequently, Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, president of the District of Columbia Golf Association, last night sent a wire letter to Herbert H. Ramsay, chairman of the championship committee of the United States Golf Association, expressing regret in regard to the rejection and the hope that one or more of the District aspirants would be admitted before the national amateur championship opens on the twenty-second instant.

District Clubs Telegraph Appeals.

This appeal was supplemented by similar telegrams from the Congressional, Chevy Chase, Columbia, Washington, Indian Springs and other clubs. Whether this effort will have any effect remains to be seen, but there is no doubt that the local clubs made their position very emphatic.

The course of the Burning Tree Club was thronged yesterday with golfers in their practice rounds, preliminary to the District amateur golf championship tournament which begins at 9 o'clock this morning, 72 holes, medal play. An especially warm welcome was extended to Walter R. Tuckerman, who won the District championship many years ago, and who, as a member of the Burning Tree Club, has entered for today's contest, although he has not of late

6-RUN RALLY WINS FOR PIRATES

Cubs Bow, 9 to 6; Wilson Gets 3 Hits But No Homers.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—A sixth-inning rally, which netted Pittsburgh a cluster of six runs, today enabled the Pirates to beat back the league-leading Chicago Cubs, 9 to 6, in the first clash of their four-game series. The Cub loss, while the New York Giants were splitting even with Boston in a double-header, allowed McGraw's contenders to creep up a half-game on the champions.

The entire Buccaneer line-up batted around in the big sixth inning. Comorosky, who started the rally with a double, fanning with two men on to end the frame. The Pirates made six hits in the inning, two of which were doubles, and these linked with two walks, produced the half-dozen tallies that spelled victory.

Bucs Trailing 5-2 When Rally Starts.

The home team was trailing, 5 to 2, when the game-winning offensive was launched. Teachout, starting Cub hurler, and Blake, who relieved him, were both driven from the slab in the sixth, Nelson finally stemming the drive. He left the game in the eighth for a pinch hitter and Shealy finished.

Spencer, starting Pirate moundsman, also went out in the sixth frame, Brame batting for him and driving in a pair of runs with a single to center. Swetonic, whose relief pitching against the Cubs has baffled them several times this season, held the visitors scoreless except for a homer by English in the ninth.

McGraw Signs to Manage Giants Five More Years

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants for more than a quarter of a century, announced today that he had signed a contract to lead the Giants for another five years. Announcement was made at this time, he said, to dispel rumors that he was to move to the American League or to some other National League club.

McGraw said he had agreed with Charles A. Stoneham, president of the Giants, six months ago to renew his managerial contract for another five years at its expiration this fall. He said he had always been associated with the National League and expected to complete his baseball career in that circuit.

Ill Health Kept McGraw From Team.

In explanation of his continued absence from the Giants' bench, McGraw said he was under doctor's orders to stay away from the ball park. Although his health has improved recently, complete recovery from an ailment could not be assured him unless he stayed away from the bench, McGraw said. The veteran's absence from the Giants' ball yard is believed to have started rumors that McGraw was to manage some other major league club next season.

"Mr. Stoneham and I reached an agreement six months ago," he said, "and another contract would have been signed about the beginning of the new yaer, but with these foolish stories going around that I would manage another club, or even leave the National for the American League, caused us to conclude the business now."

Rumors have persisted, since the Giants went on their last Western trip without the manager, that the man who has been in charge of the Giants since 1903, and is a stockholder and vice president of the club, would not retain his place.

Declares National League Race Not Over.

It was explained today that ill health has kept the manager from the bench. McGraw's health is reported much improved, but his physician warned him that he could not hope to regain his health if he insisted on braving the heat and humidity of the bench.

Manager McGraw is hopeful that his 1930 taem will win his eleventh championship for him.

"No, the race is not over yet by a long shot," he said. "We certainly have a chance."

"Will you be able to take a seat on the bench if the Giants get in the world series?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes," was the reply, accompanied by the famous McGraw smile. "I am sure, in that event, the doctor would permit."

Mack Rookie Star of 11-4 Triumph

Grove Is Relieved in 6th But Accounts for No. 23.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Outfielder Jim Moore, recruit from the Texas League, occupied the spotlight here today in the Athletics' 11-to-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox. The victory increased their lead over Washington to 6½ games.

Moore hit a home run in the fourth inning and in the third hit a double that cleared the bases of three runners.

Grove, although relieved after the sixth inning, in which Boston got to him for four runs, was credited with his twenty-third victory of the season. Jimmy Foxx also hit for the circuit, driving out his thirty-third homer of the year.

Canadian Senior Golf Crown Is Won by Lyon

The Lambton veteran, eight times Canadian amateur champion during the period from 1898 to 1914, won the Canadian Seniors' Golf Association championship with a 36-hole total of 152 yesterday.

Giants Muff Opportunity, Dividing Bill at Boston

Boston, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—After winning the first game of today's double-header from the Braves, 5 to 3, the New York Giants lost a golden opportunity to gain materially in the National League pennnat race as they fell victims to an eighth-inning Boston rally and lost by an 11 to 7 count. With the even break, the Giants gained only a half game on the defeated Cubs instead of picking up a contest and a half.

The first game was a close affair, which was decided in the seventh inning when itcher Clarence Mitchell's infield hit was followed by a single by Critz, which went through Richbourg's legs to the bleachers and produced two runs. Each team had scored three runs in the sixth.

Home runs by Berge and Chatham, the first being Berger's thirty-third of the season, kept the Braves in the running through the early part of the second game, although Boston errors provided several Giant runs. With the Giants in the lead Boston drove Bill Walker from the mound and continued their attack against Hub Pruett for eight tallies. An error by Critz, a bad throw to Jackson on what looked like the start of a double play, had a big part in that big inning. It allowed the first run to score and prolonged the inning while the Braves hammered in the rest

Three Jockeys Hurt At Timonium Races

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Three jockeys were injured at the Timonium Fair, Baltimore County, in a spill in the sixth race at the half-mile track today. J. O'Malley was brought to a Baltimore hospital with injuries said to be critical. R. Haines was also taken to a hospital, but with less serious hurts, and J. Shanks was able to hobble to the jockey's quarters.

Sun Francis, a 3-year-old colt, had to be destroyed.

O'Malley, riding Daisy Buck, the favorite, in a 6½-furlong $500 claiming race, for 3-year-olds, was tossed in a jam just after the start, and the horses then ran into the rest of the field.

Burke Holds Yankees Hitless Following Early Sprees.

By WILLIAM HENNIGAN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Sad Samuel Jones was released by the Yankees back in 1926. Ever since then Sad Samuel has toyed with Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and the other big and little hitters of Col. Ruppert's pet ball club. When the sage of Woodsfield, Ohio, tossed his glove nonchalantly on the mound the Yankees generally found a defeat waiting for them on their doorsteps.

But today the worm, like all good or bad worms, did a bit of turning and the Yankees knocked Sad Samuel out of the box in five innings and crushed the Nats in the opening game of the series at the Stadium by a score of 10 to

FLYING HEELS EASILY WINS FEATURE AT BELMONT

Petee Wrack Second to Choice

Calome Is First Home in Feature at Lincoln Fields.

BELMONT RACE TRACK, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Gifford A. Cochran's Flying Heels, 1 to 4 favorite, scored an easy victory in the Manhattan Handicap, a mile gallop here today. Petee-Wrack was second and Caruso third and last. The race was run over a muddy track and the time was 1:37 2-5, which was exceptionally fast time considering the track conditions. Out of the original eight carded to start five were withdrawn.

The start was good. Flying Heels and Caruso ran head and head for seven furlongs. At the top of the stretch, Kelsay on Flying Heels carried Caruso wide and left him out in the middle of the track. Flying Heels then drew away to win by three lengths. Petee-Wrack who was lengths back in the early part closed with a rush and was second in the last stride. The race was worth $3,400.

Lincoln Fields, Chicago, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—A. A. Baroni's Calome liked the heavy going and accounted for the Roseland, feature event on the card here today. The 3-year-old traveled the mile in 1:47 1-5 to win by a length and a half over Honey Locust with Tannery three and a half lengths back. It was an allowance affair worth $1,100 to the winner. Calome, overlooked in the betting paid $14.30 in the $2 mutuels.

Six faced the starter with Honey Locust ruling an even money choice. Calome given a strong ride was taken out to the best going and heading Honey Locust in the stretch drew out under heavy punishment to win in a drive. Honey Locust much used up in the deep going withstanding Lawyer's bds, weakened in the final drive to the wire. Tannery up close at the three-furlong pole was taken back abruptly, responded strongly to hard urging in the stretch and outlasted Lawyer for the show. Niato quit after showing early speed.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Roosevelt Road Purse for 3-year-olds and upward, feature at Lincoln Fields, Chicago, will be run on a heavy track. The patrons of the Western track should not be napping and let BEST MAN, trained in New York by James Fitzsimmons, get away with this race at long odds, without at least giving the colt consideration. He is a good horse, and won in the East in the spring over a highly regarded field.

He can beat HOT SHOT, the probable favorite. TANTIVY may figure in the race, but third will do the Whitney cast-off. It is the best spot BEST MAN has been in since he was sent West. WILLA and BEAMING OVER are others that will have backing in the six furlongs dash. BEST MAN on his New York form stands out in this company.

FIRST RACE—The first race is for maiden 2-year-olds. GOOD FRIEND has been coming close to brackets, but has yet to score, and this may be the opportunity. REMEMBERED, of the Pendleton entry, coupled with COURT BOULIN, looks like the contender, and is rated as a mudder. SON O' SWEEP has turned in some very fair races, and all the Sweep generation have been able to take care of themselves in heavy going.

SECOND RACE—The second race has some speed in it and ZETA is regarded the best of the field. THAT'S IT should be the contender, although seeming to have dulled off since spring. CHARM won a race the other day and is always dangerous. ZETA is by Zev and has been a breadwinner in the West.

THIRD RACE—SISTER MARY is regarded best of the 2-year-olds in the third race, and should overcome the strong opposition of CHICAGO GIRL and FLYING CHEROKEE at the distance and weights. SISTER MARY is very consistent. CHICAGO GIRL may be better than FLYING CHEROKEE, but it will be a battle for place.

FIFTH RACE—AREGAL is a superior mudder and should win the fifth race. He is not much force on a fast track, but is better than anything in this field in heavy going. The field is a large one, but AREGAL with 108 pounds and a quick breaker, has much the best of it. BROWN FLASH is something like his name. He turns in a flashy race occasionally, but also has some bad ones to his credit. WHISK ARROW is a dependable plater and may get in the money.

SIXTH RACE—HY SCHNEIDER is picked to beat the TARTAR in the sixth race. It should be almost an even thing between the two. HY SCHNEIDER has picked up in his racing the past summer, and has won two races recently. FORT DEARBORN may save the show money.

SEVENTH RACE — MOTHER'S CHOICE seems the best in the seventh race. LOCKET will be well backed and is the most dangerous of the others. BUNCH OF LILIES has early speed, but may stop. RED CROSS SISTER is the best of the outsiders.

PETEE WRACK, which has important stake engagements in Maryland this fall, ran second to Flying Heels in the Manhattan Handicap at Belmont Park yesterday, but showed he has rounded into best form, and will be a dangerous handicap horse. He was going a mile, which was run on a heavy track, in 1:37, and was going fastest at the end. He needs a longer route. With so many of the handicap division out of commission, like TORO, DIAVOLO and others—PETEE WRACK should garner some big stakes this fall.

CALVARY NINE WINS IN WEEK-DAY TITLE SERIES

Repair Shop Eliminated By 11-3

Departmental Champions Unable to Hit Davidson.

Church League Title Winners Will Play Pullman Nine.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	W.	L.
Pullman (Terminal Evenins)	3	0
Calvary (Georgetown Church)	2	1
Tile Setters (Industrial)	2	1
*D. C. Repair Shop (Departmental)	1	2
*Naval Hospital (Governmental)	0	2
*Capital Traction (Term. Morning)	0	2

TODAY'S GAME.
Calvary vs. Tile Setters.

THE D. C. Repair Shop Nine, pennant winner of the Departmental League, was eliminated from the week-day championship series yesterday when a sixteen-hit attack of the Calvary M. E. diamonders, champions of the Georgetown Church League, buried it beneath a 11-3 count on the Terminal diamond.

The Calvary Team today faces its last hurdle in the chase to meet the Pullman Co. Nine for the championship, being listed to meet the Tile Setters, one of the three remaining teams in the tournament, in the semi-final game. Both Calvary and its opponent of the day have lost one game and today's loser will be eliminated, while the Pullman Nine, undefeated in three starts, will be waiting to meet the victor for the title.

Score Without A Safety.

The Repair Shop Nine held a lead but for a short time yesterday, hopping off to a 1-run lead without the aid of a hit in the first inning before the heavy bombardment of the Church Team opened. Much walked to open the game, stole second and advanced to third and the counting block on successive infield outs. It was the last run the team could score before the sixth inning, when it was on the short end of a 4-1 score.

Calvary waited until the third inning before tying the score, but from then on never failed to make a run during their turns at bat. McClelland's fumble of Bowman's single permitted Davidson to score from second in knotting the count, and three hits and an error gave the Churchmen two more tallies in the fourth.

Buscher Doubles;
Out at Plate.

Buscher doubled, but, after advancing to third on an infield out, was nipped at the plate by Hoffman, who handled Taylor's roller. Kilroy singled to right, however, and, when Clark and Middleton allowed Davidson's fly to drop between them, Taylor scored. Third Baseman Much then let Clark's peg go through his legs, and Kilroy crossed the plate.

Calvary continued the assault with another run in the fifth, two in the sixth, three in the seventh and two in the eighth. Each of the winners collected at least one hit, Davidson leading the attack with three. None of the losing nine could gather more than one hit, only seven safe blows being garnered off the deliveries of Pitcher Ray Davidson.

GRID HOPES BRIGHT AT VIRGINIA

Despite Inexperienced Squad Coaches Are Confident.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., Sept. 3. With the largest early season gridiron squad in years reporting for practice on Lambeth Field, there is a feeling that Virginia is headed for a much higher rating in Southern Conference Football circles the coming year.

Despite the fact that Capt. Sloan and several other stars of the 1929 eleven are missing, and that much of this season's material is green, it is confidently believed that a winning eleven will be developed. Indeed, conditions are much the same as the year in which the Orange and Blue went to New Haven and took the measure of Yale to the tune of 10 to 0, and later the same season kept Harvard from crossing its goal line in a hard match at Cambridge.

Seven Letter Men Now
On Hand.

With seven letter men on hand and one more to report Earl Abell, head coach, now knows for certain the quality and quantity of the material out of which he will have to build the 1930 Cavalier eleven.

Of the squad now numbering nearly a half hundred, four-fifths are comparatively inexperienced. There are few besides the wearers of the "V" who had any large part in major games last fall. There is much of promise, but development wil require time.

Capt. Hunter Motley, of Madison, Va., tackle, heads the list of veteran letter men, all of whom come from within the Old Dominion. The others are Bill Thomas, of Richmond, and Herbert Bryant, of Alexandria, backs; John Peyton, of Staunton, end, and Bill DeButts, of Barboursville, and George Cameron and Churchill Dunn, of Petersburg, all guards.

Bob Kimball, of Ipswich, Mass., is the only "V" man still to call for his uniform, for it now appears certain that Dick Day, of Richmond, who has played center, guard and tackle, will not be allowed to play on account of his health.

Conditioning Exercises
Precede Drills.

Both morning and afternoon workouts find Archie Hahn, trainer, giving the squad conditioning exercises before Coach Abell takes charge of the men. The head coach, assisted by Joe McConnell, works with the men who play in the middle of the line.

Gus Hebell, former head coach at North Carolina State, is now looking after the ends and backs. He has as his first assistant John Sloan, who was captain and quarterback of the 1929 Virginia team.

"150-Pound" Elevens Play In Capital City League

Managers Vote to Change Name to Unlimited Class; 10 Teams Represented; 135 Pounders Meet Tonight.

A BIGGER and better sandlot football race, under the colors of the Capital City League, is the aim of those teams which composed the 150-pound circuit last season and several elevens new to organized grid play. Evidence of this was given last night when team managers, in a meeting at the Howard A. French sports store, voted to remain under the guidance of the District sandlot body.

It was voted that hereafttr the league will be known as the Unlimited Section of the Capital City League, the clubs deciding to drop the misleading title of "150-pounders."

The league will open play probably on the second Sunday in October, playing once around. An ample number of playing fields where collections may be taken to help the clubs defray expenses are available.

Bill Fiester, who headed the details of the league play last year, will coöperate again with the Capital City League in conducting the league business.

Teams will be required to post a deposit of their franchise fees at the next meeting to be held at French's on September 17. At this time the rules for the coming season, will be discussed and voted upon.

Ten teams were represented at last night's meeting. They were: St. Stephens, 1929 champions; Seat Pleasant, Quintens, Mercury, Marions, Columbia Heights, Petworth Pennants, Brookland and the Alpha Delta Omega Club, at Alexandria.

Tonight, representatives of the 135-pound elevens will meet at French's at 7 o'clock to further their plans for the coming championship race.

Burke and Lacey Tie In New York Tourney

Salisbury Plains, N. Y., Sept. 3 (A. P.).—Billy Burke, of the Round Hill Country Club, Greenwich, Conn., and Charles Lacey, of the Pine Valley Country Club, Clementon, N. J., were tied for first place with cards of 69 at the end of the first eighteen holes of the Jos. J. Lannin Memorial open played today over No. 4 course of the Salisbury Country Club.

A stroke behind the leaders were Craig Wood, of Bloomfield, N. J., and Bobby Cruickshank, of Purchase, N. Y., each scored 70. Two strokes behind were Bob Shave, of Cleveland; Bill Mehlhorn, of Pensacola; Sol de Buono, of Larchmont. Lacey, who played the first nine holes in one under par, closed with a rush with 33 on the homeward trip to tie Burke.

Among others under 80 were: Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Calif., 37—35—72; Ed Williams, Cleveland, 37—38—75; Fred Baron, Pittsburgh, 38—37—75; Tom Armour, Detroit, 39—37—76; Leo Diegel, Augua Caliente, 41—36—77.

$60,000 British Classic Attracts Good Field

Doncaster, Eng., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Sixteen of the best 3-year-olds on the English turf are ready to start in the fifth and last classic of the season, the Doncaster St. Leger, which will be run on Wednesday, September 10.

From the cream of the season's classic contenders, Blenheim, Epsom Derby winner, is the only absentee. But two of Blenheim's stablemates will run for his highness, the Aga Khan, the only owner with two starters left in the classic.

Sir Hugo Hirst's Diolite, derby favorite, who ran third at Epsom, probably will be the favorite for the longest of the classic races. The thirteen other probable starters are Algonquin, Fairy Prince, Lovelace II, Grand Salute, Singapore, Christopher Robin, Redeswood, Seer, Prince Paradise, Rameses II, Iliad, Rockstar and Parenthesis.

The race will be worth around $60,000. The distance is a mile and six furlongs. It is a quarter of a mile longer than the derby and three quarters of a mile longer than the Two Thousand Guineas. It was established in 1776, being senior of the classics.

Chevy Chase Battles Hyattsville Sunday

The Chevy Chase Grays, runners-up in the Montgomery County League, will meet the Hyattsville Nine, which finished third in the Prince Georges section, Sunday on the latter's Riverdale Park Field, at 3 o'clock.

SAYS PEGLER

There was a story about in those days to the effect that Paavo and Willie Ritola, another Finn, living in New York and running for the Finnish-American Athletic Club, were enemies. Willie was supposed to have defied Paavo by running to win in some Olympic race when Paavo, believing in his own superiority, would have had Willie exert himself primarily to kill off runners representing other countries.

Paavo's Austere Manner
Irks His Rivals.

At any rate, Ritola, a spunky runner with a gangling get-along on the track, was no more intimate with Paavo than the American reporters who did not know him at all. And while the feud may have been exaggerated, certainly Paavo's austere manner on the track and in the dressing rooms would have been sufficient provocation for some high-strung athletes with respect for the proprietes of sport to hit him a sock on the nose.

Paavo not only made no point of shaking hands with the runners whom he had beaten, but actually made a point of not doing so, and one night, after he had run away from Joie Ray, he jogged off the track without waiting for Joie to finish and even ignored Ray's hand when he sought him out in his dressing room.

Paavo lay on a rubbing table in a smelly little closet beneath the back stairs of the old Garden, his blue eyes staring at the ceiling while Hugo Quist's palms went slippety-slap up and down his legs. Half a dozen obscure young athletes of the supporting card of races were in the room, too, drawing on frayed underwear, and there was a smell of bodies, and cigaret smoke and of wintergreen in the rub stuff. Joie Ray had paused to take his bows before the crowd after finishing the run and now he came bounding into the cubicle, yelling, "Here's Joie Ray! Where is Nurmi? I want to congratulate him."

Ray Doesn't Get Tumble.

Hugo Quist spoke to Paavo in Finnish, presumably to say that Joie Ray wished to salute him and drew aside to admit Joie to the table, but Paavo's eyes remained fixed and not a muscle moved. Quist spoke to him again, a little insistently, and Joie paused, embarrassed. In confusion, he reached over and grasped Paavo's passive right, waggled it and dropped it back on the table with an audible plop.

"My God!" Joie Ray exclaimed. "That ain't alive!" and backed out.

I understand that he is an automobile salesman in Finland now, and if any one so reticent as Paavo Nurmi ever sells an automobile, that will be something on the order of a world record, too.

TWO MISSING AT G. U. GRID CAMP

Bordeau and Wallace Expected to Show Up Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

POINT LOOKOUT, Md., Sept. 3.—Two lively workouts of two hours each featured the formal opening of Georgetown University's preseason football training here today, with Head Coach Tommy Mills taking command.

Although the drills kept the 40-odd candidates moving continuously at a rapid pace, all were none the worse for wear when the dinner gong sounded. The work was designed to loosen up muscles and increase the players' wind so that they will be prepared for scrimmaging, which is slated to start next week.

Only Two Players Fail
To Show Up.

All but two of the players invited to the camp were in attendance today. Those missing are Buddy Bordeau, hard-running full back of the 1929 varsity, and Tom Wallace, a promising junior half back, whose left-handed passing makes him worthy of especial grooming. Both are expected to arrive tomorrow morning in time to participate in the first session of the day.

Tim Moynihan, assistant coach, also was missing today, but Mills reiterated his belief that the former Notre Dame center would show up, contrary to a story published in Washington that he was going to join Knute Rockne's staff as freshman coach at Notre Dame. Mills expressed his faith in Moynihan and declared, "I am sure Tim would have mentioned it before now had he planned to go somewhere else."

Charity Race Meeting Listed November 27

All profits of the one-day meet will be distributed to Kentucky orphanages, as in the past.

On the night of the charity meet, the annual trotting horse sales of the Kentucky Sale Co. will begin, and the Fasig-Tipton Co. will open its second annual thoroughbred sales at Lexington.

Orange Co. Boosters Defeat Minerals, 6-2

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., Sept. 3.—The Orange County Boosters, a team made up of players from all over Orange County, closed their season at Louisa today by defeating Mineral, 6 to 2. This team has defeated teams from the Northern Neck and all over this section.

Byrd Smith, twirling for the Boosters, pitched his eighth consecutive victory, bringing his total for the season to twelve wins and two defeats. Smith allowed five hits. The Boosters bunched five hits in the eighth inning to score four runs.

Sanford ran wild at the bat, hitting two three-baggers and a double out of four times up. Greiner also got three hits. Jones made a star catch in the seventh, running far back between left and center and catching a hard-hit ball as it fell between the light wires.

EAGLES PLAY HEIGHTS ON SUNDAY

Pigs and Mt. Rainier Clash; 2 Protests to Be Heard.

THREE baseball "naturals," each involving a Capital City League championship, are offered sandlot fans this Sunday. In the District League, the Anacostia Eagles and Columbia Heights, standing one and two in the fast-closing race, will clash on the Congress Heights Diamond.

In the Prince Georges County section, the Dixie Pigs and Mount Rainier will battle it out for the county championship in a single contest. These rivals ended the race in a tie. Sunday's winner will compete in the intersectional Capital City playoff with the District winners, Takoma Tigers, of the Montgomery County section, and Bauserman Motor Co., of the Virginia section.

In addition, the Acme Printers and the Lionels will resume their battle for the Junior championship and The Washington Post gold baseballs, emblematic of the title, on the West Ellipse at 3 o'clock. The Acmes won the first game and can clinch the honors with a victory Sunday.

Two protests will be heard by the Capital City League board tomorrow night, which may have a bearing on the titular race in the District section. Columbia Heights and St. Joseph are the complaining teams and in each case the alleged playing of ineligible players is the charge. Columbia Heights' claim is against the Army Medicos, while St. Joe's claim is against Foxall.

U. S. YACHTS WIN.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—With the American six-meter sloop, Lucie, sailed by Briggs S. Cunningham, leading the procession, the United States quartet of yachts won the third successive team match with Great Britain today, scoring 20¼ points to 16 by the English boats.

The match ave the United States team a commanding lead for the British-American cup, which is decided on the basis of the best four out of seven matches. Although the total point score has no bearing on the result of the series, the count now stands: United States, 60¾; Great Britain, 0.

SHADY OAK WANTS GAME.

Shady Oak desires a game for Sunday with an unlimited team having use of a diamond. An out-of-town team is preferred. Call the Shady Oak manager at Lincoln 8136 between 7 and 9 p. m.

OLIVER, C. U. ACE, JOINS GRIDMEN

Appearance Gives 7 Backs to Coach Bergman.

JOHNNY OLIVER, 145-pound ball-carrying flash of the 1929 Catholic University Eleven, joined the Cardinals yesterday in training in Brookland Stadium for the coming campaign. Inasmuch as it was his first day, Oliver did not undergo the hard routine assigned his mates, but he took part lightly in both the morning and afternoon sessions and will be ready today to plunge into the drilling seriously.

With Oliver in the fold, Coach Dutch Bergman now has seven backs whom he can shift about in the back field positions in an effort to learn definitely which quartet looks the most capable. Seven backs is not nearly sufficient for Bergman's purposes, but for the time being they will do. The Cardinal mentor does not plan on picking a first-string back field or a first-string team, for that matter, until the last week before the Boston College game, scheduled for September 27.

Whalen on Sick List.

The first casualty reported in the Catholic U. camp was revealed yesterday when Tommy Whalen, promising half back from last year's freshmen, failed to appear for practice. He was taken ill Tuesday night with stomach trouble and an infection of the heel. His troubles, however, are not believed serious and he should return to action within a couple of days.

It also was learned yesterday that the Cardinals may have to lose the services of Barry Martin, substitute quarter back last fall. Martin is said to be in poor health. He was expected to report yesterday.

Court Coach Scorns Job as Superintendent

New Martinsville, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Basketball has become an indirect political issue in Wetzel County. It came about through the nomination of Edgar Roberts, coach of Hundred's State High School champion basketers, by the county Republican committee as a candidate for county school superintendent. If elected, Roberts would have to quit as coach and this he does not wish to do, at present. Consequently he has issued a statement saying that "I do not choose to run," and in case he can't get off the ticket he intends to campaign against himself.

Wrestling Is Hobby Of West Va. Preacher

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 3.—The Rev. S. C. Bowen, pastor of the Walker Memorial Baptist Church here, is called the "wrestling parson" because wrestling is a hobby with him. He participates occasionally in amateur matches and takes a keen interest in other bouts.

participated actively in local golf events.

M. B. Stevinson, the present title holder, did not appear on the course, having played several times recently over Burning Tree, but Harry G. Pitt and many other leading golfers were on hand. Very few players kept a record of their strokes, although Byrn Curtiss, junior champion of the Indian Spring Club, was well satisfied with the 75 marked down on his card.

It was announced last night that C. B. Murphy, champion of the Congressional Club, would play today, his name having been accidentally omitted from the entry list published yesterday, and he will take the place of Page Hufty, of the same club, who has been called away from the city. Although the members of the Burning Tree Club have been playing winter rules, the question whether summer rules shall be in force today and tomorrow had not been definitely determined last night.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

FINGER TIP INJURIES.

DR. M. E. LICHTENSTEIN says infections and injuries of the last joint of a finger should be treated in a way that is peculiar. The bone does not taper to a small end. It piles up into something resembling a small spore mass. This is covered by periosteum the usual covering of bone, but this membrane does not peel off of the tissues as is usually the case. It joints up with them. The pad of tissue which makes up the finger tip is composed of fat and bands of firm, fibrous tissue. This tissue is attached to the periosteum underneath and the skin on the outside. The blood and lymph vessels of this pad communicate rather freely with the bone below. The arrangement means that an infection which gets well below the skin of this last finger joint is quite apt to get into the bone and cause a bone felon.

Fortunately, the skin in this region is free from hairs and grease glands. Since most of the pimples, boils, carbuncles and acnes result from infection which has entered through a grease gland or along a hair shaft, this part of the hand is free from these troubles.

Infections in and around the nails are not likely to get far below the surface. Were it not for accidents resulting from the exposed location of the finger tips this part of the anatomy would come out very well in the struggle for safety and fitness. An infected wound of the tip of the finger should be cleaned but not overly cleaned. It should then be wrapped in a gauze dressing wet with a mixture of equal parts alcohol and glycerine. Since alcohol evaporates rapidly, the dressings should be well covered. To apply heat is to increase pain and to promote the extension of the suppuration. In some cases heat gives relief, but it should always be dry heat; and if pain is not relieved its application should be discontinued.

The finger pad is partitioned off by firm bands of connective tissue through which pus can not readily escape. Therefore, drainage should be free else the bone may die and come away. Lancing may be required to save the bone. Lacerations of the finger tips are apt to be overtreated. They do best if not sewed but left alone under rather simple dressings.

PARENTAL BLOOD TEST.

Mrs. A. B. writes: Will a blood test show whether a certain man is the father of a certain child?

REPLY.

No.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. L. W. writes: How long does whooping cough last? How long after having contracted it can one tell it from ordinary cough?

REPLY.

Whooping cough is very contagious, during the fever stage. This generally lasts about two weeks. It is mildly contagious for about three weeks after that.

The peculiar cough is an undependable sign in making the diagnosis and in fixing the period of contagiousness. Some cases never whoop. Diagnosis must be made without that sign.

Once a child has learned to cough the whooping way he may keep it up for weeks or months. In fact, some children seem loath to go back to the old way of coughing.

Man Shoots Wife, Son And Then Wounds Self

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—George B. Duke, 33, shot and seriously wounded his wife and 14-year-old son and then critically wounded himself at their home here early today.

Mrs. Duke said she was awakened by a blow over the head and saw her husband standing over her. Before she could get out of bed, she said, he fired at her. I. C. C. MAN NAMED AS AID TO BRIDE IN UTILITIES MATTERS

POSITION TO CONVEY SALARY OF $6,500

First Important Task Will Be in Connection With Traction Accounting.

Appointment of William A. Roberts, senior attorney examiner of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, to be special assistant corporation counsel to handle legal affairs of the Public Utilities Commission was announced by District Commissioners yesterday.

Mr. Roberts was recommended for the post, which carries an annual salary of $6,500, by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride. His service with the Interstate Commerce Commission has given him wide experience in valuation of common carriers, as well as other utility matters.

He also has served as member and vice chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations and as a member of the Citizens Advisory Council, through which he has acquired thorough familiarity with the local utility situation. Mr. Roberts and William McK. Clayton represented the citizens' organizations in recent merger legislation negotiations.

Graduate of Tufts.

Before approving Mr. Bride's recommendation for the appointment, the Commissioners had sought an expression of opinion from the Public Utilities Commission, but that body declined to reveal its stand either way.

Mr. Roberts is an engineering graduate of Tufts College. He also holds a degree of bachelor of laws from Georgetown University, and is a member of the bar in Washington and also in Massachusetts.

From 1919 to 1920 he was employed by the Charles H. Nichols Construction Co. in Boston. In 1923 he joined the Interstate Commerce Commission as a civil engineer in the Bureau of Valuation, and in 1925 he was promoted to associate attorney examiner The following year he was made attorney examiner, and in 1927 he became senior attorney examiner. In 1929 he was assigned to the assistant board of review, of which he later became chairman.

Other Positions Held.

Last November 15 Mr. Roberts was appointed member of the electric lines recapture committee, and at present he is engaged in preparation of a plan and organization of valuation of 362 electric suburban and interurban railroads. Among numerous valuation cases on which he has worked are those of the Pacific Coast Railroad, Alabama & Vicksburg Railway, Central Vermont Railway and the Chicago & Northwestern Indiana Railroad.

Mr. Roberts, who is married and has three children, lives at 5405 Potomac avenue His appointment is to become effective as soon as he can finish his work with the Interstate Commerce Commission, which recommends him highly.

His first important task for the Public Utilities Commission probably will be the legal work in connection with revaluation of the District street car system ordered recently by the commission.

Manslaughter Charges In Car Death Ignored

Charges of manslaughter against Olin Vernon Mitchell, 19 years old, were ignored by the District grand jury in a report made to Justice Jesse C. Adkins.

Mitchell, driving an automobile several weeks ago, is alleged to have run down two colored women, killing Mary Dixon. The grand jury, it is understood, was told that the accident occurred while the youth's automobile was being propelled in second gear and while he was exercising reasonable caution.

Boy, 4, Seriously Hurt When Struck by Auto

Four-year-old Bernard Davis of 515 Seventh street southeast, suffered severe bruises and lacerations and a possible fracture of the skull when he was struck near his home yesterday afternoon by an automobile driven by Samuel R. Caswell, 58, of 406 Sixth street southeast. The child was treated at Providence Hospital.

The driver was not held, testimony indicating that the child had run from the sidewalk directly in the path of the car, which was reported moving at a moderate speed.

New Police Car Crosses Street to Stop "Murder"

To take care of a large number of hurry-up calls, an emergency car went into service at the Sixth Precinct early yesterday morning. And the first call for the new car was to a house on New Jersey avenue near D street, almost directly opposite the station house. The machine grandly pulled away from the station, made a sweeping curve and pulled up to the house across the avenue.

A colored woman had been loudly screaming for police, crying "murder." The occasion was the death of her brother, who had died following an illness of several months.

DAIRY DRIVER FILES PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

Whalen Held in $10,000 Bond for Grand Jury in Big Robbery.

TWO SUSPECTS SOUGHT

Arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the $15,000 robbery at the Southern Dairies Sunday night, William J. Whalen, 26-year-old driver of the concern, who resides on Second street northwest near D street, pleaded not guilty and was ordered held for action of the grand jury under $10,000 bond.

No testimony was offered at the arraignment, but Millard Sniffin, an official of the company, and Headquarters Detectives L. M. Wilson and Thomas Nally, whose names appear on the information containing the charge, were present to testify. Assistant United States Attorneys Michael F. Keogh and Wilbert McInerney appeared as Government prosecutors.

Police are still searching for two men believed to be implicated in the case. These men, according to the detectives, are believed to be Fred Nally and Roy Beall, both of whom are said to have disappeared since the robbery. Nally is a former employe of the dairy firm while Beall at the time of the robbery was employed in the cashier's office.

Whalen was arrested Monday morning when he turned over to his employes a $100 bill which he said the robbers had given him for silence. He named Nally and Beall as the men who had given him the money and stated that they had gained entrance to the offices by stating that Beall had to work overtime.

War Chief Defendant In Officer's Pay Suit

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley was named defendant in a suit for injunction filed yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court by First Lieut. Edward W. Kelly, Twenty-first Infantry, attached to Schofield Barracks, Territory of Hawaii.

Lieut. Kelly alleges that the Secretary of War is withholding his pay illegally. He states that in 1925, while he was ordnance officer and post engineer officer at Plattsburg, N. Y., he was held liable for shortages in stores totaling $473.70, for which, he claims, he was in no wise responsible. Since then, he says, the War Department has withheld the entire sum from his pay. He prays the court to order the Secretary to make payment and also wants the Secretary restrained from interfering with any finance or disbursing officer of the Army in making the payment.

Postoffice Employe Held in Mail Theft

Alvin G. Thornton, Negro, of First street northwest near N street, an employe of the Washington Postoffice, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a warrant charging theft from the mails. He was ordered held under $2,000 bond for preliminary hearing.

Postal inspectors who preferred the charges alleged that the clerk had been under suspicion for some time and was arrested Tuesday night. His arrest, the inspectors said, followed his opening of a decoy letter containing $8. The inspectors stated they watched the man from the blinds in the mail assorting room at the postoffice.

BARRERE FINE PAID BY WOMAN FRIEND

SLAPPED GIRL AT PARTY

Herman H. Barrere, the garrulous itinerant painter, and once considered the pivotal figure in the Mary Baker murder mystery, was liberated yesterday from a Philadelphia jail, where he had been sentenced after an illeged disorderly party.

Mrs. Marion M. Jarrell, who is called "Bud" by Barrere, paid the fine. Mrs. Jarrell was at the party where Barrere slapped Lorraine Lee, a 23-year-old brunette. Mrs. Jarrell was Barrere's companion on the Canadian trip which was climaxed by his arrest.

Mrs. Kathryn Abel, Mrs. Jarrel's mother, refused to pay Barrere's fine and expressed the wish that he stay in jail. However, Mrs. Jarrell was more lenient and produced the fine necessary for his release.

Mrs. Abel says that Barrere has been a "star boarder" at the Jarrell home since last May. Nevertheless, Mrs. Jarrell and her fiance came back to the latter's home yesterday. Miss Lee was also released after she had paid her fine.

"I've told my daughter that he wants to marry her because she has some property," Mrs. Abel said, "but she won't listen to me."

Mrs. Jarrell is a widow.

Woman Stole Hosiery, Jury Verdict.

Sally Hall, colored, was convicted by a Police Court jury before Judge John P. McMahon yesterday on charges of petty larceny in connection with the theft of ten pairs of hose from the W. & F. Grand store August 15. Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh prosecuted.

THREE MEN INDICTED IN M'CRORY HOLDUP

Two in Jail, Third Reported Taken in Custody in Baltimore.

ROBBERY LAST MONTH

Three men were indicted by the District grand jury yesterday on charges of robbery in connection with the holdup of two employes of the J. G. McCrory Co. on August 7.

The three named are John Irvin, Elmer Benett and Henry Mechelinski. Irvin and Bennett are now in the District Jail, having failed to make bond of $10,000 following their arraignment before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage several days ago following their arrest.

Mechelinski is said to be in custody in Baltimore, and the speeding up of the indictment is said to have resulted from a desire to remove him to the District for an early trial next month.

The trio is alleged to have attempted to force Earl D. Flory and Harvey W. Smith, employes of the firm, into an automobile, Flory and Smith, carrying a black bag containing $1,200 of the company's money, were going to the bank at the time. Flory resisted, and the three defendants are alleged to have seized the bag and the money and made their getaway.

Several days later the automobile which figured in the holdup was found abandoned in Anacostia, and shortly afterward the empty satchel also was discovered in that vicinity. The arrest of Irvin and Bennett came after intensive work by Howard Ogle and Dennis J. Murray, headquarters detectives.

Policeman Rough, Says Maj. Purcell

Attorney Charges He Was Called "Common Culprit."

After being freed on a charge of disregarding an official parking sign, Maj. James A. Purcell, on leaving Police Court yesterday, declared he would go before Maj. Henry G. Pratt and file formal charges against Policeman J. A. Voss, who arrested him.

Maj. Purcell, who for 20 years has been a member of the District bar, recently purchased the City Club property on G street at a foreclosure sale. He said he had obtained permission from the Traffic Bureau to park his automobile in the rear of the property, and declared he was in the act of loading fans and other electrical equipment in his car when Policeman Voss ordered him to go to the First Precinct station and post collateral.

Maj. Purcell stated that he refused to go to the station house whereupon the policeman called the patrol wagon and took him to that place. Maj. Purcell said he had been treated roughly, discourteously and called a "common culprit" by the policeman.

National Hairdressers Will Determine Styles

The responsibility of determining hair dressing styles for the coming year will occupy the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association at the third session of its annual convention in the Hotel Mayflower today.

Hairdressers from all sections of the country will compete for the honor of style arbiter, a distinction that the beauticians zealously seek. J. R. Hirsehfield, director of the American styles division of the organization, has charge of the event. After the styles are agreed upon the approximately 1,000 delegates at the convention will celebrate at a large banquet in the Mayflower tonight. Several changes in by-laws were adopted at yesterday's session.

Painter Injured in Fall Off Downtown Scaffold

Undetermined injuries were received yesterday by Earl Prosise, 38 years old, of 5300 Forty-first street northwest, when he fell from the third floor of a department store near Eleventh and G streets northwest. The man, a painter, was at work when he apparently lost his balance and fell to the ground from the scaffold on which he was working.

The injured man was rushed to Emergency Hospital, where it was thought he had several broken ribs and possible internal injuries.

It requires special permission from the head of the Police Department for a member to make a present to a superior, so that Mullins had to ask the major's permission before the gift could be made.

Boy Badly Wounded Hunting With Friend

Slug Goes Through Body of Henry Hunt, 14, Shot by Accident.

Hovering between life and death, Henry Hunt, 14 years old, of 436 Oneida place northwest, lies in Emergency Hospital with a bullet in his chest, the result of a hunting trip with a friend. The shooting, said to be accidental, occurred while the Hunt boy and Charles McLendon, also 14 years old, of 426 Oglethorpe street, were hunting in the vicinity of Third and Rittenhouse streets northwest.

Earlier in the day the two lads had set out on the expedition, armed with a .32 caliber revolver. In the woods the weapon was discharged and the bullet struck young Hunt in the body. He was rushed to Emergency Hospital, where doctors immediately began to probe for the missile.

In making this examination doctors discovered that the bullet had passed through the boy's shoulder. Young Hunt was resting as easily as could be expected late last night.

The McLendon boy was held at the Thirteenth Precinct Station until Capt. C. P. M. Lord had finished an investigation of the occurrence. He was then sent to the Receiving Home.

WORK ON NEW COURT QUARTERS TO START

NEAR POLICE STRUCTURE

Work of remodeling and redecorating the building at 472 Louisiana avenue, bought by the District Commissioners last week as a new home for the Juvenile Court, is to start tomorrow, it was announced yesterday by Maj. H. L. Robb, assistant Engineer Commissioner.

It is expected the work will require about 10 days for completion, after which the court will move in immediately, so that the Capitol architect will be able to start at once to demolish the old Arthur School Building at Arthur place and B street northwest which has housed the Juvenile Court for the past several years.

Whether the Commercial Press, a printing company now occupying a part of the Louisiana avenue building, will be permitted to remain is a question not yet decided. It is known that Judge Katherine Sellers of the Juvenile Court is anxious to have use of all three stories of the building, and present indications are that the District Commissioners may accede to her wishes and offer the printing company other quarters in some other building now owned by the District in the municipal center area.

The new Juvenile Court Building, which is located about three doors west of the new Police Department headquarters in the Walker Building, at 462 Louisiana avenue, was purchased from the Little Art Shop, Inc., at a price of $70,000.

Razing of the Arthur School Building is in line with the Federal Government's plans for beautifying the area adjacent to the Capitol.

CITY REFUSE FORCE TO MOVE QUARTERS

Corporation Counsel Bride Will Occupy Rooms Made Vacant.

WILL SHIFT TOMORROW

Completing the first stage of reallocation of departments in the District Building, the City Refuse Department is scheduled to start moving into its new quarters in the Walker Building at 462 Louisiana avenue at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning.

It is hoped that the department will be able to complete evacuation of the four rooms it now occupies on the second floor in one day, so that Corporation Counsel William W. Bride can start moving his offices from the fourth floor to the second not later than Monday.

In its new quarters, the City Refuse Department will have about 3,500 square feet of floor space on the top floor of the six-story Walker Building which now also houses the Police Department. This will give the refuse section approximately twice the room it has now in the District Building.

When the Corporation Counsel moves from the fourth floor, that entire floor then will be available for use of the Engineer Commissioner for assignment at his will to the various departments under his jurisdiction. A substantial portion of the additional space thus acquired will, it is expected, be allotted to the municipal architect's office which now is seriously cramped for room.

The corporation counsel's office will use not only the four rooms to be vacated by the City Refuse Department, but also the rooms recently vacated by the Police Department on the second floor.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

OVER the long road, at twilight, Luella's ill-fated picnic party limped back to the city—dog-tired, hungry as bears. Like an oasis in a desert, a Bar-B-Q hove in sight.

As one man, the drivers parked their cars in front of the food emporium and the party made a dash inside.

"What a picnic that turned out to be!" one lad remarked, helping his better half through the doorway.

Sounds of dissension rumbled beneath the surface of a mock cheerfulness—and I knew Luella had turned a host of friends into potential enemies. Something had to be done about it.

"What I can't understand," she said to me, "is why people should make such a fuss over missing a meal."

"Oh, you can't, eh?"

"No, I can't. Entire nations have, at times, gone hungry——"

"Yeah? When?"

"What about the starving Armenians?" she asked, her brows raised.

* * * *

IN my estimation, the starving Armenians were pretty well fed compared with us—and to prove that everybody felt the same way about it, we made a raid on the Bar-B-Q, demolishing a side of beef and destroying a couple of lambs. They called it lamb, though it was probably mutton.

Fed, life took on a different complexion for the picnickers; proving again the age-old adage that a well-fed people are a happy people. Hence, the great love of prosperity and luxury, and all things that make life worth while.

One by one, two by two, the gathering bade us good-night, Luella inviting them all over to the Old Manse for Sunday dinner.

"Why did you do that?" I asked, fearing another disaster.

"Goodness gracious! We owe them that much, at least—the picnic——"

* * * *

SUDDENLY I took my stand "Never, so long as you live, ever again mention 'picnic' to me The word is positively abhorrent From now on, I detest picnics."

She looked at me, chagrin in her eyes.

"For that," she flashed, "I'll never invite you to another one."

"You mean that?" I asked skeptically.

"I most certainly do! Never, never again!"

With enthusiasm, I picked her off the ground, crushed her to my heart, and smothered her with kisses—

"Luella, you darling!"

Thus were sorrows turned to joy.

CHARGES AGAINST GRAVELY IGNORED BY DISTRICT JURY

Special Report Exonerates Policeman of Girl's Extortion Story.

MAN UNDER SUSPENSION AFTER HER ACUSATION

Former Detective to Report to New Precinct When Ban Is Lifted.

The District of Columbia grand jury, in a special report made yesterday to Justice Jesse C. Adkins, ignored charges of extortion against Policeman Spottswood Gravely which were placed before it Tuesday by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, and which involved charges made in a Police Court trial last week by a woman defendant.

Gravely has been under suspension since the woman's charges were made public, and subsequently has been transferred from the Second Precinct to the First Precinct. When his suspension is lifted he will report to the latter precinct

Third Transfer of Year.

The transfer of Gravely is his third for the year, since before going to the Second Precinct he was a detective in the Third Precinct. He was demoted and transferred from the Third after his name had figured in a case in which three men were indicted on charges of extortion. Police officials ascribed his demoton to promiscuous use of firearms, Gravely having shot one of the men who was later indicted, an act which precipitated an investigation.

The charges which the grand jury ignored yesterday were made by Elizabeth G. Campbell. The girl, on trial last Thursday in Police Court, on charges of assaulting Gravely and a policewoman, told the jury that she had given the policeman as much as $50 on many occasions for protection, but that Gravely had raided her three times. As a result of her testimony the jury found her not guilty of assaulting Gravely, but guilty of assaulting a policewoman.

Testified Before Jury.

Miss Campbell, who is at liberty under $300 bond awaiting sentence, appeared before the grand jury Tuesday and is understood to have related a story similar to that told to the Police Court jury. Her friend, Helen Talass, and Inspector Thadeus R. Bean, of the Police Department, who made an investigation of the charges for the department, were the other witnesses.

Gravely did not appear before the grand jury, but the day after the girl's sensational charges he issued a blanket denial. He declared that when he trailed the girl on the date of arrest he did so under instructions from Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick to "let women pick him up" in order to make disorderly house cases.
